EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

PAY your taxes before Saturday, October 2d.

PAY your taxes before Saturday, October 2, if you wish to vote.

WALLACE seems to have the inside track for the Congressional nomination on the Democratic ticket.

NOTICE to all Republicans. If you haven't paid a tax within two years, do so prior to Saturday, Oct. 2nd, as that is the last day.

MR. SEDGWICK is a partisan. He is also an offender. That would make him an offensive partisan. Mr. Cleveland, please take notice.

THE custom of offering a prize to the couple who will get married at the county fair is a good one—especially if the prize is of sufficient value.

SATURDAY, Oct. 2nd, is the last day for payment of taxes, preparatory to voting in November next. Let all Republicans attend to this matter.

THE Eastern Pennsylvania Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran church requires that all young men whom its aids in their course through Pennsylvania College obstain from the use of tobacco in any form.

Two weddings in high life occurred last week. A son of A. J. Drexel, the Philadelphia banker, was married at Elberon to Miss Rita Armstrong, of Baltimore. A son of Jay Gould was married to Miss Edith Kingston, an actress.

A LOSS of two or three votes from non-payment of taxes, in each election district in the State would cut down the Republican majority 10,000 votes. Let every Republican who is now delinquent pay his poll tax before Saturday, October 2d.

COUNTY COMMITTEEMEN and other active Republicans should prepare lists of all those Republicans who have not paid a State or county tax since the last Presidential election. Then let the delinquents be hunted up and urged to make immediate payment. October 2nd is the last day.

WE noticed editorials in some of the papers, last week, telling young ladies and gentlemen not to marry unless they can do so suitably, and informing them that it is better to live in single blessedness than to be uncongenially married. We believe, however, that most young people are aware of this fact.

THE Shah of Persia is the boss Prohibitionist. A deputation of the ladies of Teheran recently visited him and told him that the cafes had a demoralizing effect upon their husbands, keeping them out late at night, and thereby interfering with the joys of the domestic fireside. His King of Kingship frowned and immediately gave orders for closing up all the cafes in his kingdom.

Having a High Old Time.

The President of the United States still remains in the mountains in the full enjoyment of hunting and fishing, having a high old time, with true Jeffersonian simplicity. We hear from him occasionally when he don't catch a fish, or when his wife wants to send to her bootmaker's for a pair of new slippers which are very elegant in their simplicity. The lady of the White House can wear slippers that for costliness are the wonder of the women of the country.

Where is the President's cabinet? Of course, when the cat is away the mice won't play, and they are all at their desks in Washington.

Mr Bayard is the only one there. He has been there all summer keeping up his physical tone by frequent horseback rides. He is waiting impatiently for the President to return so that he, too, can go somewhere for a high old time.

Secretary Manning is away. He is sort of a constitutional invalid of late. Washington City produces that effect on many men who go there. But we guess Mr. Manning will leave his position altogether. He is not the sort of a man to occupy a merely nominal position in anything. If he can't run the treasury he wont have anything to do with it. He will give way to some man with less brains and better ability to digest late suppers and drink wine.

Secretary Endicott cannot endure Washington in the summer. He likes his Massachusetts home much better and chooses to spend much time there. He can have an agreeable time much better in Massachusetts and draw his salary all the time. So rare are his visits to Washington that when he does put in appearance there for half a day it is recorded as the visit of a very distinguished gentleman.

Secretary Whitney is at Lenox. We suppose he is very weary after his desperate efforts to knock out John Roach. To keep him in memory of this set-to with the great ship-builder he remains at Le nox (the knocks). He has helped to knock the business of this country in to smithereens, and in a few years Whitney will be knocked out in connection with the rest of the Democratic gang.

Mr. Vilas is off to his home in Wisconsin. He, too, is reported to be sporting around like a gay old boy. He don't care for his business in Washington at present; his personal interests and pleasure are of much more importance.

Garland is at his home in Arkansas. He has been away six weeks. There is a faint hope that he will not return. He is the worst of the lot. Solicitor-General Jenks has gone to Washington to do Garland's work, and with a comparatively honest and capable man there, it would be better for Garland to remain away. We are in favor of continuing Garland in the enjoyment of his "high old time."

Secretary Quintus Tertius Lamar is journeying through the Sunny South. He expects to be away a long time and is booked for a great oration in Charleston next November when the Calhoun statue is unveiled. What need he care for the affairs of State when there are important orations to be delivered? He will have his "high old time" among his friends in the South.

This is a picture of the statesmanlike way in which the government is being conducted under a Democratic administration.

Treatment of Foreigners.

The report that there has been a massacreof Christians in Tonquin caused a certain contemporary in Pittsburg to compare the treatment accorded the Christians to that which the Americans accord the Chinese in the western part of this country. We believe the comparison is not applicable and can show it. While we are not prepared to say that the treatment of the Chinese by our neighbors on the western slope is justifiable, yet we believe that a great deal of senseless gush and misrepresentation is indulged in here, on that subject, and of the misrepresentation the comparison of the Pittsburg paper is a sample.

Undeniably, the western people have much cause to be indignant at the dirty Chinese, who come to this country, live in filth and work for almost nothing. But the idea of comparing, the way they were treated with the massacre of Christians in heathen lands! The mission of the two is very different. The Chinese come here only to accumulate what money they can with which to return to their own country and live in splendor on their wealth. Their mode of life is, in every detail, beneath that of those who surround them, yet they never try to rise to a corresponding plane of civilization. The Christians go to foreign countries only in the spiritual, mental and physical interests of the people. They do not go to accumulate riches. All their relations with those heathen lands have been to open them to the usefulness of civilization. They instruct them in lessons for the mind and soul without asking for pay. The difference is the same as that between the visit of a man with a thousand dollars for you and the visit of a a robber at your home. The one you would welcome; the other expel at any cost. So much for our Pittsburg contemporary's comparison.

The Sedgwick Affair.

The more we hear of the conduct of Mr. Sedgwick, the man who was sent to Mexico by Minister Bayard to investigate the Cutting case, the more disgraceful does it seem. Indeed, all the transactions of the Government with Mexico are such as to cause humiliation.

It is an absolute truth that Sedgwick was made disgracefully drunk, that he was taken from the banquet hall to a house of low repute, that he was made sport of by Mexican dudes, and that he put to shame every respectable American living in Mexico.

We cannot ascribe to ill-fortune the entire blame for this state of affairs. It is impossible that ill-fortune could pursue any well-meaning administration so relentlessly. There must be either criminal carelessness or evil intention to make such a blundering appointment. It is unnecessary to remind our readers that no such disgraceful proceeding ever occurred under a Republican administration. No Republican could be found who is so lacking in self-respect as this fellow Sedgwick. The relations of this country to other nations, when Republicans were in power, ever tended to elevate, not humiliate us in the estimation of others. Oh, for a restoration of the days of honesty and dignity! Turn the rascals out!

AN Italian named Succi has discovered a wonderful liquid, which is a highly concentrated food. A small portion will sustain life for several days, and keep one as vigorous, strong and healthy as though he took his three meals a day with undeviating regularity. The inventor is making a public test of his discovery at Milan, by undergoing a prolonged fast. He is attracting a great deal of attention, and is visited daily by physicians who are deeply interested in the experiment, as well as by scores of people who go out of curiosity. Succi refuses to make known his formula, wisely believing that a large fortune can be made out of his discovery when its value becomes known. It is too soon to say much about this wonderful liquid, but if it is what the discoverer claims for it, there need never be any more starvation, either among the poor in the city, the shipwrecked sailors or the travelers in the desert. Even North Pole explorers can be perfectly safe as far as food is concerned by taking with them a quantity of this preparation. The liquid should have been discovered a couple of decades ago or more to be of much use to this country. For instance, how valuable it would have been to the Democratic party during their quarter of a century fast! How the hungry and thirsty would have rejoiced had they been possessed of an elixir like this, which would have satisfied their hunger and assuaged their thirst. But it will be useful again, when their present access to the offices shall have terminated. The Democratic party ought to pass a vote of thanks to Succi.

TILDEN, the greatest of Democrats, never gave better advice than when he advocated the erection of coast defenses. The Democratic party, however gave no heed to the advice, although the Republicans acknowledge its importance, and in Connecticut their State platform for the present campaign declares: "In the present condition of our coast fortifications the country stands practically defenceless. It is incapable of conducting international controversies upon equal terms, and is liable to shameful humiliations. Prompt and energetic action is a high and immediate duty. We commend the Republican Senate for its patriotic attempts to meet the emergency, and declare the Democratic House of Representatives without excuse or palliation for its refusal to co-operate."

Post Office Politics.

The best postmaster the city of Philadelphia has ever had was the one-armed veteran, General H. S. Huidekoper, who was appointed by President Hayes at the request of a very large number of leading business men of that city. His re-appointment by President Arthur was made in response to the popular demand for the continuence in office of a public officer so thoroughly efficient.

When Cleveland became President, General Huidekoper had three years of an unexpired term to serve, but with the record upon his table that Huidekoper had lost an arm at the shoulder in defense of his country; that the Philadelphia Post Office ranked highest in the country—the percentage of errors being one in 11,000 pieces of mail matter handled—the New York office ranking fourth with one error in each 6,000 pieces handled, and that business men of all parties were protesting against a change, the removal of General Huidekoper was one of the first made by President Cleveland, who, despite his loud professions in favor of Civil Service Reform, appointed Wm. H. Harrity, a young lawyer, and a leading politician of Philadelphia, in place of the competent Huidekoper.

Immediately after Mr. Harrity entered upon his duties as postmaster, the Philadelphia Post Office was made a political headquarters where plans were concocted by Democratic leaders for making State and county nominations, in consequence of which the postal service has become so demoralized that from ranking highest in the list of post offices of the first grade, Philadelphia is now the lowest of all in rank.

So demoralized has the postal service of Philadelphia become that the Commercial Exchange of that city has publicly protested against it; business men are obliged to forward important mail matter by express in order to insure prompt and certain delivery; the newspapers without an exception, Democratic and Republican, are urging Postmaster Harrity to reinstate a sufficient number of the 400 competent Republican officials removed by him in order to make places for ward politicians. But no regard is paid to these protests of the people and admonitions of the press and Democrats high in public confidence, and the postal service of Philadelphia is so rapidly going from bad to dangerous, and is so seriously affecting the business interests of that city that a town meeting is likely to be held for the purpose of protesting so loudly against the prostitution of the postal service to political services that even the President shall hear it.

And this is a practical illustration of President Cleveland's promise to divorce politics from the public service. It is the first time in the history of the country when the Philadelphia post office has been made a political headquarters, and its postmaster a political boss of Pennsylvania; but the Cleveland-Randall wing of the party must win at the primaries even if the postal service is devoted generally to political manipulations. All in favor of such a shameful public service should shout and vote for Chauncy F. Black, the Philadelphia post office candidate for Governor.

A CORRESPONDENT of the New York Evening Post makes a very sensible suggestion regarding the Anarchists who are so anxious to abolish all law and government. He says: "Would it not be a short way out of our trouble to give any man who announces himself an Anarchist the benefit of his creed to a limited extent? Let the Government cease to exist, so far as he is concerned. Let it no longer enforce his contracts or collect his debts or protect his property or guard his life. Let him be an outlaw, for law is a part of government, and let no coroner sit on his body if it is found dead. Would there not be a real as well as a poetic justice in placing him outside the care of what he despises and seeks to destroy?"

SAMUEL J. and George H. Tilden, nephews of the late lamented Samuel Jones Tilden, assert that they will contest their uncle's will. They should not do so. The old gentleman knew just what he was doing when he wrote that will. We believe the will provides that any one who contests shall be excluded entirely from its benefits, and we warn the nephews that such will be their fate if they attempt to change the last will and testament of one who was wise in his day and generation.

A Settlers' Convention.

In all the newer states and in most of the territories settlers' meetings are common occurrences, but it is a new idea to call a settlers' convention in one of the original thirteen states. This has been done in North Carolina by several hundred people of northern birth who, after living there long enough to find that it was a good state to live in, have determined to give their old friends and neighbors the benefit of their experience, availing themselves of the opportunity of the holding of a State Fair in Raleigh the last week in October. They have joined in a call upon all their friends to meet them on Tuesday, October 26, for a comparison of notes, and in an invitation to all at the North who are contemplating immigration to meet with them and hear from them all about the Old North State. Every section of North Carolina will be represented by practical and intelligent men, and as what they have to say about the resources of the country will be illustrated by the exhibition at the State fair, it will be the best opportunity that ever has occurred to obtain accurate information upon which intelligent action can be based. It would be well for all who expect to immigrate, unless they have formed decided plans, to attend this convention.

The Audubon Society.

The Audubon Society for the Protection of Birds, which is now incorporated, enters upon its second half-year with a membership of over 12,000. There ought to be ten times as many members, for the objects of the society are most commendable and should enlist the sympathies of every one who cares for the preservation of our song birds. The society wants a local secretary in every town in the country. It issues handsome certificates to members. No expenses of any kind are incurred by those who join. Correspondence is invited. Circulars of information will be sent free on application to Audubon Society, No 39 Park Row, New York.

THE Czar of Russia will find it necessary to kidnap M. Stambouloff, if that gentleman does not exercise a little more discretion in his remarks. He has declared that whoever might be elected to succeed Prince Alexander, he would surely be overthrown if he attempted to Russianize the people or abolish the Constitution. The Russian agent at Sofia has informed the Bulgarian Government that he will suspend diplomatic relations with Bulgaria if the Sobranje persists in its intention to punish the authors of the conspiracy which resulted in Alexander's dethronement. Russia evidently proposes to protect her Bulgarian tools, and of course she cannot be expected to condone such utterances as those of M. Stambouloff.

THE Philadelphia Press is an ardent believer in high license and we commend it for reformation to Rev. D. S. Monre, D D. The Press bases its reason for high license upon the increased revenue which has followed the high license law in Illinois. But does not the Press take into consideration the right or wrong of the subject? If it is wrong to engage in selling spiritous liquors, is it not wrong for a government to reap the profits? High license virtually makes the government a partner in the business, and there are thousands of citizens who would lose all loyalty to or love for a government that subsisted by evil means.

THE Governors of seven of the thirteen original states were in Philadelphia on Friday to arrange for a fitting observance of the centennial anniversary of the promulgation of the constitution of the United States. The date of the celebration will be September 17, 1887. The governors present were: Pattison, of Pennsylvania; Lee, of Virginia; Lloyd, of Maryland; Steckley, of Delaware; Wilmore, of Rhode Island; McDaniel, of Georgia; and Sheppard, of South Carolina. Three other states were also represented by officials, making ten states in all which took part in the arrangements.

"THE supporters of the third party adopt as sheir shibboleth that "the Republican party must be killed," and they have secured the co-operation of the Democrat, of the Free Trader, of the saloon proprietor, of all men who wish to keep six millions of colored people in the South disfranchised and oppressed. It is an insincere coalition, an unhallowed partnership, an unholy alliance."—From a recent speech by James G. Blaine.

Some people are mean enough to suggest it is just possible the Taylor brothers nominated themselves in Tennessee. Apparently the office is in the family.

The Dutchess of Cambridge, who is verging on 90, is still in good health and preservation, manifests more interest in public affairs than many young women.

The German Government will, it is said, introduce a bill extending the compulsory insurance against accidents to sailors, who have heretofore been debarred.

Statistics, more or less accurate, show that John Bull is by no means the beef-eater that he is cracked up to be. Englishmen eat but an average of 45 pounds a year, while the Australians average 150 pounds, and citizens of the United States 130 pounds.

A copperhead snake, two feet long, was killed by a broomstick in the hands of Miss Emma Robinson, of Crawfordsville, Ind., on Tuesday. It had crawled into one of the rooms of her house, and was evidently looking for its breakfast when it was dispatched.

We knew New York was wicked, almost as wicked as Chicago, but we did not think the case was as desperate as it is. The Rev. Chow Ju Tien, the first Budhist priest who ever visited New York, is now located in Mott street, looking after the theological interests of that locality.

A watchmaker says that the multitude of telegraph, telephone and electric light wires in large cities has much to do with the variations and stopping of watches that hitherto have been good timekeepers, and that manufacturers are trying to invent means to provide against this magnetizing of watches.

Poetry.

AN AUTUMN IDYL.

Well, vacation is over. I've come back to town,
With a heart that's a deal worse for wear,
And my spirits, once light, are decidedly down,
I am lonesome. Perhaps 'tis as well to declare—
I'm in love!

I've the symptoms exactly—I dream and I pine,
You see I'm inspired to write
Bad verses, and that's an infallible sign—
But fancy a man, in his curious plight
I love two!

The moon which illumines this hot, sultry night
Reminds me now, one month ago,
I wandered with Dorothy, piquant and bright,
On the cliffs down at Newport. We talked—well
you know,
Not much sense.

I love her, adore her. But can I forget
The day with dear Imogen spent
In the mountains? And how in sweet intercourse met
Her spirits and mine as together we bent
O'er "Lucille."

Now, one of those two charming girls, I have sworn,
I will marry. But which shall it be?
For w dded to either, I'o certainly mourn
For the other who seems just as charming to me
I despair!

But I must decide, for 'tis cruel to play
With a woman's affections. Eh, what?
A letter from each! Im lucky to-day.
Let me see. "You'll congratulate," "usher"—
Great Scott!
Both engaged!

The Question Changed.

September's here,
The days are clear,
The skies are brightly blue;
No more we meet
Upon the street
The man that erst we knew,
Who grasped our hand
And made us stand—
While precious moments flew—
Till he inquired,
As we perspired,
"This hot enough for you?"

But now we meet
Upon the street
A man of different make,
He leaves the throng
That streams along
And gives our hand a shake,
And with a smile
He asks us, while
He sees us there, quite plain,
"You're been away,
I hear them say,
Have you got back again?".

STAR-GAZING.

By the wide open window
Sweet Nellie and I
Sat watching at midnight,
The stars in the sky.
My love whispered low
As she gave a fond kiss;
"Dear there's naught in the sky
So enchanting as this"

But Nellie still held me
Pressed close to her arms,
And again her lips yielded
Their ravishing charms,
"O, sweet Nellie!" I murmured,
"In words old or new,
There is no constellation
So radiant as you!"

The stars and the planets
went out with the day,
Though they ne'er shone so bright
No word did they say.
But there came a low murmur
As I mused all alone—
"Twas thy whisper, O, fond one,
My darling my own"

Our Story Teller.

WOMAN'S WEAPONS.

"How do you like my aunt's new guest, Bruce?"

"Saw nothing wonderful in her. She's not bad to look at, I believe. Has a reputation as a flirt, if I don't mistake. I'm never taken by such girls, Cecil."

Cecil Harrison laughed a little in his indolent, easy way, and his laugh was very good to hear.

"You're never 'taken' by any sort of girl," he said cheerfully; but there's no use in saying a man is happier without being in love, for he s not. I tell you, a good honest attack of love will make a man of any fellow. I'd like to see you hard hit, old fellow."

"You may live to see it; but if you do, the object of my affection will not be a society belle, a flirt, or the fashion, as Miss Aubrey told me our new arrival is."

"Flirt or no flirt, she's certainly the style of girl that is sure to play havoc with some poor fellow's heart."

Bruce Carleton made a wry face.

"And no doubt she is t this moment doning her war- aint, with the laudable intention of making a tablet of yours or mine,' he remarked carelessly. "I wonder if prudence would be the better part of valor in this instance? Would you join me in a trip of a few weeks?"

"I would tell my aunt why you went, and give Miss Vernon a new triumph," was the lazy answer, given with a smile.

"All right. Here I stay, and face fate as bravely as I can. I am prepared to be dazzled by splendor surpassing that of Cleopatra, when our belle and beauty comes down, By the way, can it be long before dinner. I'm fairly famishing, after the long tramp, by which I lost luncheon."

"Half an hour or so," Cecil answered. "Have a cigar? They're capital. Why, what was that?"

"The door of the library swung to. Are you growing nervous?"

"No, but I'm growing uncomfortable. Some person was in there, and may have heard all we said. It was unmanly of us to criticise an absent lady, and one who is young and lovely."

"Oh, she'll get old and ugly soon enough, if that makes the matter any better," answered Bruce carelessly.

But as he left his seat and went in through the window, there was an unusual color on his face, for he had caught the sound of light footfalls, as well as the closing of the door, and was sure some ears had caught his unkind and uncourtly remarks, despite his seeming indifference.

And he was right. A girl had stepped lightly over the threshold of the library in the very beginning of the conversation.

She went hurriedly across the room, placed a book among its fellows, and was reading the titles of the others near it, when the first remark I have chronicled reached her.

"Ah, they do think of us when we're not by!" she whispered, dimpling smiles on her face. "I have always thought that men could gossip, and here I am listening to two f them gossiping about one of us. No, I'm not listening; I'm looking for a book."

But she did not make a selection from the volumes until after Bruce had expressed himself as being prepared to be dazzled by the splendor of Miss Vernon's attire when she appeared at dinner. Then, with a saucy light in her grey eyes, the girl took down her book, crossed the room, and allowing the door to close behind her noisily, ran swiftly up the stairs, not pausing until she stood before a door, at which she tapped lightly.

"May I come in, Bella," she called.

And immediately the bolt was drawn, and a slender girl stood in the doorway, clothed like a young queen, in a rich robe of amber silk, which fell far behind her on the floor.

"Oh, shut the door, and let me tell you something!" cried the grey-eyed girl, eagerly. "And, oh, Bella, do take off that lovely dress, and put on something plain and prim! He said you were putting on your war-paint, and would try to dazzle like a Cleopatra. But I must tell you!"

"Yes, I think you must, unless you wish to confuse me hopelessly," said Miss Vernon, with a smile in her dark eyes, as she drew her visitor in and shut the door. "Now who said all this about me?"

In five minutes Kate Aubrey had told all about the conversation which she had heard; and her listener's delicately cut face had colored with haughty anger for a moment; then mingling with the anger a touch of amusement shone in her dark eyes.

"Help me, Kate," she said laughingly. "I am my own maid to-day. We will disappoint that critical and charitable gentleman who expects such splendor. I wonder whether or not I will ever forgive him for his remarks? He is most unkind!"

Within half an hour the two girls stood before Miss Bella's mirror, laughing at the slight maiden it reflected, clad in simple white cashmere, with no ornament about her.

"You look like a lily!" cried Kate; "or like a Puritan maiden on her wedding day! If you had a few flowers you would do; but you are looking your very best, Bella dear; plain attire becomes you."

"I'll get a flower or two downstairs; the vases are full of fresh ones," Miss Vernon said, smiling at herself in the mirror, then turning from it.

Kate went to her room for a forgotten trifle, and Isabel Vernon went down to the drawing-room alone. Nobody had come down, save Bruce Carleton, who turned from a window as she entered.

She did not seem to see him, but went straight to the mantle, on which masses of bloom were gathered in vases, and began selecting a few flowers.

He followed her immediately.

"The vases are high for you," he said. "May I lift one down, or get you the flowers you want?"

She looked at him calmly, arranging the blossoms in her fingers without heed Her dark eyes met his own so clearly, so indifferently, that somehow he was piqued.

"Thank you; I have all I want," she said quietly. "You are very kind, Mr. Mr.Carleton; but let me assure you that a woman never prizes an act of gallantry so highly as she does a charitable word or thought given in her absence"

A hot color burned his face. Had she heard herself reviled by him?

But before he had found words to answer, she ha! fastened the blossoms at her throat and gone forward to meet Kate, who was entering.

He watched her, and as he watched, a desire to stand well in her eyes grew.

Surely rumor had belied her, when it said she was cold and cared only for conquest. What an idiot he had been to say what he had of her scarcely an hour before! Now she would never be his friend; and surely there were depths in those dark eyes of hers, curves in her red lips, power in her white brow.

He had seen no beauty in her the night before, but suddenly, with the knowledge that she must despise him, came the conviction that this girl, in her simple robe of white, with only a few roses by way of ornament, was very, very beautiful.

He could not help watching her during the whole evening, and as he watched he felt more and more convinced that the rumor had wronged her—that she was no coquette, seeking approval, but a true woman, winning homage unconsciously.

Kate Aubrey, who seemed to be on confidental terms with Cecil, whispered to him, as they were parting for the night:

"Mr. Carleton may call Bella a flirt, or anything he may like, but as true as fate he is falling in love with her."

"I hope so." Cecil laughed, easily. "He was too sure he was invulnerable."

* * * * * * *

On the morrow the pleasant party would break up, and each one go a different way.

Autumn was reddening the world; yet, under the moonbeams, it looked like a world of shadows to Bella Vernon, as she stood at her window, looking abroad.

A long letter, which she had read again and again, was in her hands; a smile of exquisite sweetness was on her lips; her dark eyes were dim, but very soft and tender, through the tears that made the outside world suddenly a confused darkness to her.

Then, after a low little knock, Kate Aubrey put her head in at the door.

"May I come in?"

"Come, Kate; I have something to tell you."

The girl came and stood beside her friend.

"I think I know what it is," she said softly. "Do you care for him, Bella? I told Cecil I didn't think you did."

"And what did Mr. Harrison say?"

"That there wasn't a finer fellow in the world, and he didn't see how you could help loving Bruce Carleton. But I knew you had not forgiven him for calling you a flirt, and saying he wasn't taken with such girls. I'm sure he would give his right hand to have that speech unsaid now, and I do pity the poor fellow. Cecil says he hasn't even a hope."

"He wrote me, owning his uncharitable remarks, and pleading for forgiveness," said Isabel softly. "He does not seem to greatly hope, for after telling me of his love, he bide me pardon that, too, and says that after to-morrow we may never meet."

"Poor fellow! You will say a few words to him, will you not, Bella? It is so sad to love one who doesn't return it! If Cecil didn't care for me, how miserable I would be!"

"But you wear Cecil's ring, dear. You are very happy instead."

"Yes, I am very happy. But poor Carleton—I pity him so!"

Miss Vernon smiled.

"Because I am going down to tell him that he is forgiven, and his love is dear too? Little Kate, I am as happy as yourself!"

"You do not mean——"

"I mean that, in trying to punish Bruce for his unkind sayings concerning me, I lost my heart to him. Yes, Kate. Is it foolish? I do not think so, for I know he will never say a rude thing of my sex again. Now I must go down and give my answer to his letter. Congratulate me, for I am very happy. Fate conquers us all, little friend!"

The Greed for Wealth.

New York Times.

When Jeremiah P. Robinson died in Brooklyn the other day he left an estate whose value is generally estimated at from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000. Long years ago when Mr. Robinson was a young and driving business man he had an ambition, and the ambition was to accumulate a fortune of $50,000.

"When I get that much money," he said one day to one of his clerks, "then I'm going to quit the business right short off and enjoy the rest of my days in ease." And several years went by before anything akin to the figure he had fixed upon as satisfactory was approached; but the closer he got the less he had to say about "$50,000 being enough for any sensible man." One New Year's day he entertained his clerk. "Will," he said, 'I've been making an inventory of things this morning, and I find that I am worth something over $50,000."

"Then you are going to go out of business, I suppose," the clerk remarked.

"Go out of business? Why, man alive, what are you talking about? Go out of business! I have only begun; my figure is $150,000; that's enough to satisfy any man, and more would be a burden. But $50,000 don't begin to look so big when you get close to it as it does when it's about $49,000 off." Neither did $150,000 when it came look as big as it did once, and its possession was but the incentive to more energy and bigger enterprise. It is the same old fever—enough is never what a mortal has.

The New York Journal remarks: "It is scarcely safe to talk to a Boston man at present. He carries his nose at charge bayonets." The Boston man, adds the Boston Transcript, does feel a little elevated just now, but hadn't he yacht to?

The locomotive works wonderfully well, considering it is fed only on coal victuals.

A New Cure for Toothache.

I always did have a scientific turn. So does the implement which imparts the circular motion to a grindstone, though I am unable to say which is the greater success as a crank. Among other symptoms of genius which are rapidly developing in me, I occasionally wrap myself in impenetrable gloom and other wearing apparel, and wrestle with a redundant and conspicuous toothache. Having deposited so many incisors, biceps and molars with gentlemen of leisure, who made a business of collecting such a bric-a-brac, I began to fear that I should be compelled to live on codfish balls and mush the remainder of my days. What wonder then the following from the London Electrician attracted my attention: "If a thin plate of zinc be placed on one side of the gum and a silver coin on the other side, with the aching tooth between them, and then the edges of the metals brought together, a weak galvanic battery will be established that will cure the pain." I immediately gathered up my wife's washboard and cut a piece of zinc from it. She made a vigorous protest, but when a man has a tooth in his mouth that is dissatisfied with the management of affairs, his troubles are as naught. After obtaining the zinc the next thing was to get the coin. A thorough investigation of my assets failed to reveal even a ten cent piece, so I went and borrowed that amount from a friend. In my hurry I laid the piece of zinc where I could not find it again. I cut another piece of zinc from the crippled washboard, the tooth rigidly adnering to the ache business, and my wife protesting; but something had to be done, and that something I heroically attempted to do. Placing the zinc and coin as directed, I let them touch below the tooth Jiminy crickets! A thousand toothaches at once. It was over in a second, and the tooth no longer ached; but the dime—oh, where was be? Half way-down my throat and marching on.

He Grows Hops.

The Lower Lake (Cal.) Press says: An opulent Indian is something very unusual in California, i. e., among the thoroughbred Diggers. They are nearly always distinguished only for their poverty, filth and general wretchedness, but we have one full-blooded Indian in Lake who considers himself pretty well fixed and, to tell the truth, we wouldn't reject a partnership interest with him right now. We speak of Bob Augustine, of Scott's Valley. Bob has relatives in this vicinity, and visits here occasionally. He was down the other day and looks much civilized, with white shirt, diagonal suit and polished boots He is in the hop business at Scott Valley, where he has a small piece of land rented, fifteen acres of which he devotes to the growth of hops. When the bottom fell out of hops a couple of years ago, the bottom came near falling out of Bob's money box, but he weathered the gale some way and held on to his hops. He di n't get mad and tear the ground and yank out the hops like Willis Green and Canice Phelan, but he pursued the unimpassioned, even tenor of his way until there came a turn in the tide that will now lead him out of trouble. His hop field is said to be as good as any in the country, the crop this season an unusually large one. Bob can afford to eat watermelons now.

Badly Mixed.

"What's the matter, Bob?"

"Sam, who am I?"

"Why, you are yourself, Bob Harrison, ain't you?"

"No, far from it."

"Why, what's the matter?"

"Well, sir; I'm so mixed up I don't know who I am."

"Don't take it so hard to heart."

"I ain't; I'm taking it in my handkerchief."

"Well, sir; what's the matter?"

"Married? ha! ha! ha! Why, sir; you should be happy.

"Yes, but how many are so?"

"Well, sir; as I said before, don't take it so hard—tell us all about it."

"Well, Sam; I'll tell you how it is. You see I married a widder, and this widder had a daughter."

"Oh, yes; I see how it is. You have been making love to this daughter."

"No, worse than that. You see, my father was a widdower, and he married this daughter, so that makes my father my son-in-law, don't it? Well, don't you see how I am mixed up?"

"Well, sir; is that all?"

"No, I only wish it was. Don't you see, my stepdaughter is my stepmother ain't she? Well, then her mother is my grandmother, ain't she? Well, I am married to her ain't I? So, that makes me my own grandfather, doesn't it?"

A Most Remarkable Turtle.

Providence Journal.

A remarkable turtle story comes from one of the seaboard towns of Rhode Island. It seems that one of the inhabitants of the place recently caught a huge mud turtle. The captor cut off the head of his prey and dragged the carcass to his house, about half a mile from the scene of the fray, and left it upon a stone wall, where it peacefully reposed over night. In the morning, what was the gentleman's surprise to find that he had two turtles instead of one; and still more interesting, the second, which was a match for the first victim in appearance and size was alive. It proved to be a female, and the pathos of the situation appeared when it was made evident that the devoted female had tracked her dead mate out of the marsh and followed him to his resting place upon the stone wall. This is a signal proof of the intensity of female devotion—in the turtle species, and, though it is well authenticated, scoffers are attempting to throw discredit upon the fact, by asking whether she brought along her dead lord's head and a bottle of Australian glue.

Maiden Names After Marriage.

English society women have just come to the conclusion that it is a proper thing for married ladies to keep their maiden name in addition to their husband's surname Hitherto it has been thought desirable only in the case of those who have won a reputation for themselves before their marriage, in the way of authorship or as singers and actresses, and upon whom a change of name would entail a pecuniary loss. Now, however, others who have no such consideration to influence them begin to feel that they do not care to so entirely merge their own identity into that of another, and that their loss by so doing is quite as real as if it had a monetary value. This practice of retaining their own names is no new fashion in the United States, those not doing so now being either among a class who have not thought of the matter at all, or, if they have, are afraid of being numbered among the strong minded.

The Biggest Safe in the World.

Scotsman.

There is about to be erected in the premises of the National Bank of Scotland, St. Andrew Square, Edinburg, the largest steel strong room or safe ever manufactured. Its external dimensions are fifty feet long by twelve feet broad and ten feet high, and a careful computation shows that within it might be stored about 1,250 tons' weight of gold bullion, equal in value to $550,000,000. It is heavy in proportion to its size, weighing 100 tons. Its walls are believed to be thicker than those of any other steel room of similar proportions in the United Kingdom.

Under the Weeds.

Weeds are the rejected gifts of nature. Man with his mistaken sense and false judgment overlooks in them some of the most wonderful and beautiful of the Almighty's creations.

The home of the cricket and butterfly, the bees' pasture and the daisy's shelter is in the weeds

Free-handed they come with their tiny flowers, these the rejected, catching the dew and the sunlight, nodding happily in the breeze, taking each from God's hand its life, and clinging to the bosom of our grand old mother.

None notice them there in the woodlands, and no rude touch plucks them forth. They have covered the wrecks of life since creation. Flags of brave people have rotted beneath their mould. They have hidden the cannons' blackened muzzle and the bloody swords of the slain.

Arms and the gorgeous paraphernalia of war, flaunting insults to the common mother, have been dragged down and hidden away by them, the bones of heroes covered up and their hearts' blood, poured out as libations, drank up and turned to perfumes for the sorrowing land.

Liberty's cause has slept under the weeds; her heroes still are there.

For instance, it was our candidate who, in praise of Hecknor's buckwheat, remarked: "I wouldn' like Hecknor's buckwheat to run against me for governor." It was General Beaver who was presented with a bottle of cologne by a little girl. It was the same gentleman of whom several persons remarked: "General Beaver is a fine-looking man." It was the General who seemed to be most interested in the races and, ten to one, the General demolished more roast ox than did his opponent.

Desks for the New School Building.

The School Board of this place set apart Friday afternoon for the purpose of receiving bids and examining the school furniture displayed by the different manufacturers, with the view of selecting desks to furnish the fine school building which is now in course of erection on East Bishop street. There was a large display of furniture made by several companies from both the East and West, but the "Fashion" desk manufactured by the Sidney School Furniture Company of Sidney, Ohio, although higher in price than several others, because of its superior construction, was adopted by the Board. The desk is provided with a simple, strong and noiseless hinge. The wood is fastened into the iron in a very ingenious manner, with a solid tea bead running entirely through the wood. The backs have separate ribs, thus making a thorough brace together with a perfect shape. It was thought by the Board, some of whom are practical mechanics and have investigated such subjects closely, to be the best, strongest and most durable, and well worth the difference in price asked over those of other manufacturers. The Board has entered into a contract with this company for the "Fashion" desk to be placed in the building when completed the coming Winter.

We congratulate the Sidney Company in securing the contract to furnish this fine building, and also the Board in being able to furnish the building with desks that give such universal satisfaction. This is only one of many instances in which the Sidney desk has demonstrated its superiority. Boards of Education in Passaic, N. J., Frankfort and Lexington, Ky., and Olean, N. Y., have recently given the company large orders. We believe the Sidney Company is the most extensive manufacturers of school furniture in this country.

POSITIVE PROOFS.

In other advertisements we have said that the Russian Rheumatism Cure was a specific for Rheumatism, and all its attendant aches and pains. These are simply Plain Facts. We now present some Positive Proofs:

Could one ask anything more to the point than this from MR. H. EMANUEL, a prominent merchant of Brookfield, Mo., who writes Feb. 26, '86:

"When in Europe, two years ago, I tried hard to buy the receipt of this very remedy. I also told Col. Theobold to get it for me at almost any price; but neither of us succeeded. I, myself, suffered with Rheumatism for years and spent hundreds of dollars, but never got any permanent relief until I tried this. Since then, (over two years now) I have not suffered the least. I know it is a good thing. It will take like wildfire. Now I want the agency for five States."

Here is another from nearer home. MR. J. D. WHITE is a leading business man of Bloomsburg Pa. His grandfather, over 80 years old, has been a great sufferer from Rheumatism. NOV. 24, 1885, MR. WHITE writes us:

"Have read your circular. The country is so full of patent humbugs it is hard to make people believe any remedy has merit until it is tried. My grandfather is such a sufferer that he would gladly give for a single day's relief ten times your price for a cure. He will try it any way, because he don't think your house would keep anything without merit."

DEC. 21, he says: "My grandfather pronounces the Russian Rheumatism Cure a first-class success. He is not relieved one day only, but altogether."

If you doubt either of these statements, write the parties; they'll gladly answer any inquiry. Our space does not permit further testimony. We have plenty of it, however. It makes quite a little book. We send it free to all who ask.

SEVEN WONDERS.

1st. Everybody wonders how it is we can manufacture a COMPLETE ANIMAL BONE PHOSPHATE and sell it at the low price of $25 per ton, in new bags delivered free on board car or boat at Philadelphia.

2d. Farmers wonder how we discovered just the proper combination of elements required to produce the needed results at the lowest cost.

3d. Those who use Baugh's $25 Phosphate, appreciate its value as a crop-producer; and wonder why any one believes the spiteful and jealous competitors who attack and vilify by false statements, in order to sell their own goods.

4th. Farmers are the best judges, they use the fertilizers. They know and freely testify to the wonderful results obtained from the use of Baugh's Celebrated $25 PHOSPHATE.

5th. The rapid and wonderful growth of its sales, in every section of the country, is another powerful evidence of its true worth.

6th. Others wonder what Baugh's New Process is, that enables them to furnish a $25 RAW BONE SUPER-PHOSPHATE. There is nothing mysterious about it, it is simply A PROCESS OF PERFECT ECONOMY; the result of combined practical tests of farm, factory and laboratory, accomplished through a long experience.

7th. The Seventh Wonder is greatest of all—why other makes, that are offered at low prices do not become popular like the OLD RELIABLE ACTIVE and PERMANENT BAUGH'S $25 PHOSPHATE.

☞ The sum and substance of the whole matter is, Baugh's $25 Phosphate is second to none in Crop Value.

ESTIMATED VALUATIONS VARY AND ARE IN A GREAT MEASURE IMAGINARY.

We have our own Laboratory at the Delaware River Chemical Works, and two Chemists constantly employed there working out scientific theories, and our practical knowledge gained by about 50 years on the farm and over 30 years as manufacturers of fertilizers.

Dissatisfaction with the Temperance Ticket.

WILKESBARRE, September 19.—The temperance people in this section are dissatisfied with the work of the state committee, which recently met at Harrisburg. The Watchfire, the organ of the temperance party in this county, created quite a sensation yesterday by printing a call for another convention to meet in Harrisburg on September 30 to nominate a candidate for governor. It says Wolfe is as big a boss as any in the democratic or republican parties, and requests him to step down and out. The call for the convention is signed by twenty-five members of the state central committee. It is as follows:

"We take down the name of Charles S. Wolfe as a candidate for the governorship from the head of our ticket. We very greatly regret that his course has compelled us so to do. We placed his name there in good faith when the convention nominated him, little dreaming that the present action would be necessary; but, though were he our best friend who had been put in a similar position, and had taken the same course, we would in like manner take his name down.

"There is too much at stake in this matter to allow principle to be compromised for a single moment. If our prohibition movement is to be made a mere political machine similar to those we have all along been condemning, then we had better abandon our movement at once and go back to our Republican and Democratic parties. They have their machines complete and in full operation, and it is a useless waste of time and expense to be constructing simply another machine.

"But we do not believe that the earnest men, who have heretofore given their time, and money, and efforts for the furtherance of this prohibition momement, mean to permit any such perversion of their efforts. We believe they have meant and still mean to make this a free movement of a free people, for deliverance from the degradation into which we have fallen through the working of political machinery, and because we have hope and labor for such deliverance through this movement we cannot for any consideration give countenance to any one who would introduce into it that which is itself destruction of this hope. Mr. Wolfe, who gained for himself much credit for his open revolt against bossism, now at the first opportunity attempts to practice the same thing which he formerly condemned in others. The attempt to introduce this among us is an attempt to degrade us and we can not do otherwise than at once reject the attempt and repudiate the author of it.

"It is an especial satisfaction that no one of our candidates is involved in this except Charles S. Wolfe. Therefore we can not only continue to maintain the principles set forth in the platform of our late convention, but also to support most cordially and earnestly all of the ticket there nominated, except the one who has thus introduced the element of evil among us."

More Rioting in Belfast.

BELFAST, Sept. 19.—There was desperate rioting on Davis street to-day. Policemen arrested two drunken men for fighting, and a mob immediately gathered around the police and threatened them with violence and it was with the greatest difficulty that the prisoners were secured. Soon as the barracks doors were closed behind the prisoners a fearful attack was made upon the building by the mob outside. Shutters were torn down and the windows were smashed with brickbats and pavement stones. There were four constables within the barracks and they fired eleven rounds, killing one man and wounding several others. It is stated a woman was wounded and has since died in her own home. The mob was scattered by reinforcements of police. Later the mob gathered in small groups, when a number of priests tried to persuade the people to return to their homes. The disturbed district is patrolled by military and police reinforcements.

Swept by a Storm.

LANSING, Mich., Sept. 19.—The hurricane which swept through Southwestern Michigan on Thursday evening was the most destructive ever known in the state. Lenwanee, Clinton, Livingston, and Wayne counties were the chief sufferers, but serious damage has been reported at other points. At Brighton, barns were blown to pieces, orchards and crops ruined and the new German Lutheran church blown from its foundation. In Victor township, Clinton county, houses and barns were wrecked and the hay scattered broadcast. At Howell the greatest fury was apparent. Several buildings were literally torn to pieces and many badly damaged. The southwestern part of the town is mostly in ruins. The cloud resembled a huge wheel in the western sky, and moved with wonderful rapidity.

Killed with a Base Ball Bat.

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 19. Thomas M. Robinson, a school teacher at Rockland, was found lying in the streets of Wilmington about six weeks ago, apparently intoxicated, and a team had to be obtained to take him to the police station. There a small cut was found on his head, but nothing serious was thought of it. When released he went home and soon became unconscious. It was then learned that the base of his skull was fractured. He remained unconscious until Saturday, when he died. When he reached home he said the cut on his head was inflicted by a a base ball bat, but he could not or would not tell by whom or where he received the injury. Deceased was about 40 years old and married. The coroner is attempting to solve the mystery surrounding the case.

Mutinous Troops.

MADRID, September 20.—A revolution was attempted last evening by a number of the Spanish troops quartered in this city. The uprising was ill-planned and ill-managed and practically amounted to little more than a mutiny. The trouble was inaugurated by a regiment of infantry quartered in the Gill Blas barracks. The soldiers revolted, broke down the partition wall that separated them from the quarters occupied by the cavalry, and intermingled with the men of the two cavalry regiments, a number of whom joined in the revolution. The officers of all three regiments did all in their power to dissuade the men from revolting, but 300 soldiers, after beating a number of officers and wounding three, deserted the barracks and marched in two bodies through the town. One body went to the Prado, the principal park and promenade of Madrid. Two thousand troops were quartered in the Prado at the time and the revolutionists expected to be joined by them. The other body went hurrying through the centre of Madrid calling on the people to join, crying, "Long live the Republic" and making threats against the monarchy. By this time the theatres and other places of amusement were crowded. The populace was taken by surprise. In most of the public places the people flocked out in a panic. In all the entertainments were abruptly terminated. The streets were soon filled with people, nearly all of whom were terror-stricken because of exaggerated ideas of what was transpiring.

The insurgents attempted among their first exploits to secure possession of the arsenals, docks and barracks, which they attacked with open fire, but all these places were well and successfully defended and the rebels were repulsed. Finally their reverses drawing them together, the insurgents attacked and got possession of the southern railway. By this time the authorities had taken in the situation and had fully prepared to master it. The loyal troops were marched to the railway, and after a short fight they completely dislodged the revolutionists, who dispersed into the country, General Gavia pursuing.

The Knights Templar.

ST. LOUIS, September 20.—Among the commanderies to arrive to-day were Pilgrim, No. 11, of Harrisburg, and De Malay, of Reading, Pa. One of the chief subjects for discussion is the question of amending the organized law of the order with regard to the power and privileges of the grand encampment. A meeting of the members of the grand encampment has been called for to-morrow to decide what course the opponents of the proposed changes shall pursue. The call is addressed to all members who oppose.

Fully 10,000 knights had arrived by 12 o'clock and more than an equal number are expected this afternoon and to night. All trains are more or less delayed by the immense traffic, and a Wabash train from Kansas City is many hours late, owing to a freight wreck. An incident of the morning, causing much amusement and some temporary annoyance, was a strike by the waiters in several hotels and restaurants. They demanded $25 per week during the conclave, and in nearly every instance carried their point and returned to work. There will be but one short session on 'Change to morrow and none on Wednesday.

Coming to the Conclave.

ST. LOUIS, September 19.—Early last evening the local Knights Templar went into quarters at the Union depot to act as Reception Committee and escort arriving Knights. Up to this evening, however, they had little to do, but few commanders putting in an appearance. To-day every train, though, brought its quota of visitors to the Twenty-third Triennial Conclave, and it was estimated that by 5 o'clock fully two thousand Knights were already in the city and additions to this number were made when the evening trains discharged their cargo.

Whirlwind in New Hampshire.

NEWPORT, September 19.—During a violent storm here Friday afternoon a barn on Pike Hill was moved from its foundation and broken in two. A shed was demolished and the hay scattered all over the farm. A number of trees were also uprooted. A black, whirling cloud moved southwest to northeast and burst just before reaching the residence of John C. Smith. The people were badly frightened. School which was being held was broken up in fright. The roar of the wind was heard for several miles.

Another Quake at Charleston.

CHARLESTON, S. C., September 21.—A severe shock occurred at 5:15 o'clock this morning, shaking houses, causing the falling of loose bricks and driving a large number of people from their beds, some of whom took refuge in the parks and open lots. The shock was felt on the water, waking up sailors and others sleeping on board of ships. Some say the shock was the severest that has occurred since the terrible shock of Tuesday night, August 31.

SAVANNAH, Ga., September 21.—Savannah experienced another very distinct earthquake shock at 4.55 this morning. The vibration lasted several seconds, causing slate roofs, windows, etc., to rattle. Hundreds of people were awakened and many were badly frightened, though there was no general alarm.

The worst feature of the shock was the additional injury to the medical college, of which a large part of the wall fell in. It is now a gaping ruin and apparently must come down, to the basement. A shock to-day is reported from Summerville, Sumter, Blackville, Orangeburry, Newberry, Augusta and Savannah. Within three minutes after the shock had passed there were a good many people on the streets, although few of them were women and children. The sidewalks have been so cleared of debris that most pedestrians had returned to the use of the pavements, but many persons kept in the middle of the roadways while walking through the streets this morning. A feeling of utter uncertainty was created by the shock. The people of Charleston seemed to have taken the disturbance in a cool and calm way. There was little interruption to business, and none whatever in the work of repairs, which is progressing rapidly.

Killed near Philipsburg.

Special to the Altoona Tribune.

PHILIPSBURG, Pa., September 21.—Last evening as the eastern express was nearing Philipsburg, at Mapleton Junction, Mr. Ammerman, the fireman, discovered a man walking in the middle of the track, about one hundred feet ahead of the train. He promptly called the attention of the engineer to the man and the usual alarm was given. The air brakes were put on, the engine reversed and everything possible done to stop the train and save the man, but it proved fruitless. For some reason he paid no attention to the on coming train, which struck him and knocked him from the track, killing him instantly. He was not cut or bruised much, only a slight cut on the face being visible. He was a stranger in this locality, but one man who has look at his body thinks it is one Charles McFadden, lately employed on the Bell's Gap railroad as a stone mason, but he is not positive. No papers were found on his person, nor was there anything else by which his identity could be established. He is five feet ten inches in height, smooth face; a heavy, strongly built man. His remains are in charge of Undertaker Haworth and will be buried here unless his friends can be found.

CLEARFIELD DEMOCRATS.

Special to the Altoona Tribune,

CLEARFIELD, September 21—The democratic county convention met here to-day and nominated the following ticket: Congress, Hon. William A. Wallace; State senator, James Flynn; Assembly, A. G. Kresmer; Prothonatary, A. M. Bloom; Register and recorder, D. R. Fullerton, Surveyor, —— Reed. Messrs. Weaver, Lee and Goodlander were elected congressional conferees and Messrs. Mahaffy, Kuntz and Shields senatorial conferees.

Grover Starts Home.

PAUL SMITH'S, ADIRONDACK MOUNTAINS, N. Y., September 21.—The President, accompanied by Mrs. Cleveland, Mrs. Folsom and Colonel and Mrs. Lamont, arrived here last night on the return trip to Washington. Yesterday's journey was made on foot through the woods covering the carriers, and by rowboats over the seven lakes between this place and Saranac Inn. After dinner last evening an informal reception was held in the hotel parlors. To-day Paul Smith drove the party to Paul Smith's station, on the Northern Adirondack railroad, and the remainder of the trip will be made by rail.

Briefs.

MANCHESTER, N. H., September 21.—The New Hampshire greenback labor party to-day nominated a full ticket headed by George Carpenter for governor. An effort was made to form a union with the organized labor convention also in session here but the latter refused to endorse the action of the greenbacker.

BOSTON, September 21.—The following officers were elected to-day by the sovereign grand lodge of Odd Fellows: Grand sire, John H. White, of New York; Deputy grand sire, J. C. Underwood, of Kentucky; Grand secretary, T. A. Ross, of New Jersey; Grand treasurer, A. T. Heppard, of Pennsylvania.

BOSTON, September 21.—About a dozen persons were in attendance at the convention of the national labor party of Massachussetts. The selection of a state ticket was referred to the executive committee with power to confer with other labor organizations and act.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS.

A Gratifying Message of Congratulation.

Among the very many messages of congratulation received by Gen. James A. Beaver, after his nomination for Governor, the following message was one which gave him special pleasure:

To Gen. James A. Beaver, Bellefonte, Pa:
We, the undersigned citizens of Larned, Pawnee county, Kansas, do hereby extend to you our hearty congratulations upon your unanimous renomination for the Governorship of the great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania—our native State. Your nomination is particularly gratifying to us because we know your splendid record as a gallant soldier, your eminent learning and ability as a lawyer, your spotless character and unswerving integrity as a citizen.

Ordination Services.

The afternoon session of the special meeting of Presbytery was called to order at 2 o'clock p. m. Rev. Dr. Freeman, of Huntingdon, preached the ordination sermon. His text was from Ezekiel 4:14. The sermon was very appropriate, being full of the missionary spirit and containing numerous facts from history relating to the surprising growth of Christianity. The ratio of growth is greater now than ever before. It was listened to by a large congregation with deep interest.

After the sermon came the solemn service of ordination. This consisted in prayer and the laying on of the hands of the Presbytery.

After a greeting by the Presbytery, Rev. Dr. Hamill, of Oak Hall, delivered the charge, which was exactly suited to the occasion. After imparting the valuable instruction which his years and experience so well enable him to do, he referred to the interesting fact that he had participated in the services when the Rev. James Orbison, father of the applicant, was ordained and departed to India to carry the Gospel message. After his address the Presbytery adjourned.

The Poetry of Affection.

The following letter was picked up on the street of this place by a gentleman friend of the DAILY NEWS:

BELLEFONTE, PA., Sept. 20, 1886.

DEAR L——Don't leave me in anger or in a dog-cart. Stay with me, love. Be my joy and my comfort. Oh how my heart aches when I think of my loneliness when thou art away—Dick.

Oh, leave me not; cling to me as you would to a grapevine—Cal.

Dear, cling to me as you would to a hot stove in the winter time.

O, light of my eyes! Joy of my life! Sun of my planetary system—Cling to me as does the romantic "bum" to the free lunch counter—But.

When thou art far, so far away,
My thoughts of thee will ever play
Sad havoc with me night and day;
Dear L—, darling, let us—pray.

A Man Killed near Tyrone.

Special dispatch to the DAILY NEWS.

TYRONE, September 22, 1886.

Between 10 and 11 o'clock last night Thomas Hogan, of Tyrone, was killed. He was lying on the main track near Burley's coal yard, asleep, when the yard engine No. 970, enroute for the depot with a draft of cars, ran over him cutting him in pieces. The engineer did not see him. The jar produced by passing over him caused alarm. The train was stopped and the mangled body was found. It presented a ghastly sight. It is supposed he was intoxicated and fell asleep, overcome by the influence of whiskey. A bottle of whiskey was found lying near him. An inquest will be held this morning. He leaves a wife. BALD EAGLE.

Convenient pleasant, and certain in their results, are Acker's Dyspepsia Tablets. Recommended by physicians and endorsed by all who have used them. The best remedy for Dyspepsia, Flatulency, and Constipation. Guaranteed, and sold at 25c. by WALTER W. BAYARD.

—The Logan Hose Company hose carriage was placed on the car Wednesday to be taken to Altoona. It has been repainted very elegantly and presents a tasteful appearance.

SPECIAL MENTION.

What We Are Indebted to the South For.

There appears in our columns to-day the advertisement of the well-known (and universally used in the Southern States) Simmons Liver Regulator. Years ago it won its way into every household of the South by pure, sterling merit. It there takes the place of a doctor and costly prescriptions. The medicine is becoming widely known in the North, and wherever used the demand for it has steadily increased. It is a family medicine, containing no dangerous and deleterious qualities, but purely vegetable, and so gentle in its action that it can be safely given to any person, no matter what age—the centenarian or the growing youngster. Working people are often in that miserable state of health which really renders them unfit for labor; but they haven't time to take medicine and be sick. Simmons' Liver Regulator can be taken without causing any loss of time and the system will be built and invigorated by it. The Regulator promotes digestion, dissipates nasty sick headache, and gives a strong, full tone to the system. In malarious climates it is invaluable, both protecting attack from the disease and expelling the poison after it has entered the system. It has no equal as a preparatory medicine and can be safely used when a doctor cannot be called in. Persons of the very highest character and eminence have given Simmons' Liver Regulator their cordial and hearty endorsement.

—Mr. Wm. H. Clark, the Grand Counsellor of the I. O. G. T. of the State, addressed a small audience in the Rink Tuesday evening. The few people who were present is not so much a reflection on the temperance sentiment of the town as the fact that the lecture was not generally advertised and the fear that temperance lecturers may advocate what is known as third party prohibition. This, we are pleased to state, Mr. Clark did not do, but he spoke instructively of Good Templary, its foundation and growth. He stated that there is no country on the face of the globe where there are no Good Templars. He also paid a glowing tribute to the W. C. T. U. which he said was encircling the globe with a band of temperance workers.

Serious Danger

Threatens every man, woman or child living in a region of country where fever and ague is prevalent, since the germs of malarial disease are inhaled from the air and are swallowed from the water of such a region. Medicinal safeguard is absolutely necessary to nullify this danger. As a means of fortifying and acclimating the system so as to be able to resist the malarial poison, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is incomparably the best and the most popular. Irregularities of the stomach, liver and bowels encourage malaria, but these are speedily rectified by the Bitters. The functions of digestion and secretion are assisted by its use, and a vigorous as well as a regular condition of the system promoted by it. Constitution and physique are thus defended against the inroads of malaria by this matchless preventive, which is also a certain and thorough remedy in the worst cases of intermittent and remittent fevers.

—The Presbyterians will hold a festival on Thursday evening, September 23, in the vacant store room on Allegheny street lately occupied by Mrs. Dare as a millinery store. It is next door to the law office of Hastings & Reeder. The refreshments will be hot rolls, ice cream, chicken, sliced cakes and everything else that is good. Proceeds for the benefit of the organ fund.

MONTGOMERY & Co.,
Tailors.

—It may appear somewhat strange that the time of the secretaries' conference of the Y. M. C. A. in this place should be identical with that of the visit Forepaugh's circus. We are quite sure that the circus does not come for the purpose of seeing the secretaries, but—

The warm weather always has a depressing and debilitating effect. Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes all languor and lassitude.

—Extensive improvements are in progress in Montgomery & Co.'s merchant tailoring store. New paper of a peculiarly handsome pattern ornaments the walls, giving the entire store a larger and much more cheerful appearance.

Babies that are fretful, peevish, cross, or troubled with Windy Colic, Teething Pains, or Stomach Disorders, can be relieved at once by using Acker's Baby Soother. It contains no Opium or Morphine, hence is safe. Price 25 cents. Sold by WALTER W. BAYARD.

—The funeral services, on Sunday, over the remains of the late Joseph Garber, who was killed at Gatesburg ore bank, were largely attended and deeply interesting. They were held in the Catholic church at 2 o'clock p. m. The church was filled by the throng of people and many who could not gain admission awaited outside. Rev. P. McArdle officiated and the funeral address which he delivered is said to have been more than ordinarily impressive. There were more than one hundred vehicles in the line of the funeral procession. The following gentlemen acted as pall bearers: Jas. Fleming, Jas. Crotty, Michael Kelly, John Love, Martin Kane and Charley Kane. The Knights of Labor, to which order the deceased belonged, were present in a body, and walked to the cemetery.

—On the same day that the sad and fatal accident occurred to Joseph Garber, at Gatesburg ore bank, an equally distressing one happened at what is known as Paddy Run Tunnel, on the L. and T. R. R., near the Union county line. A young man named Campbell, from Maine, was riding on a load of mine props on the tram road. The truck left the track and he was thrown against a tree and instantly killed. His body was taken to his home in Maine.

Our Howard Correspondent Furnishes Very Sad News.

Died.—Miss Alice Traster, near Howard, after long suffering with consumption, aged about 17 years. Deceased was a member of the Evangelical church.

Died.—Miss Mattie Hopkins, at Howard. Miss Hopkins had been complaining for some time, but, according to all appearances, was getting better under the treatment of Dr. L. R. Hensyl. On Thursday evening she went to bed feeling pretty well and rested perfectly until about 4 o'clock on Friday morning, when she coughed several times and called her mother, who came at once to her bedside. A terrible hemorrhage followed, caused by the rupture of the main artery leading from the heart to the lungs. Mrs. Hopkins held Mattie's head close against her breast and she died in a short time in her mother's arms. Mattie was loved by all who knew her. She was a member of the M. E. church. The funeral and interment took place on Sunday, the 19th. The church, where it was held, was crowded with people. Rev. Shoemaker officiated, and Rev. Hicks and wife were among the mourners. Miss Hopkins was about 22 years of age.

Rev. Hicks preached on Sunday evening in the M. E. church to a large congregation. He left for Duncansville on Monday afternoon in the 4.45 train.

Rev. Mr. Clark, lectured on Temperance in the Evangelical church on Monday evening. He had quite a fair audience.

ALERT.

—We hear that John Sourbeck offered to loan his two cream colored horses to the Logan Hose Company to take with them to Altoona to draw their hose carriage. Because of the trouble of altering the carriage for such a purpose and other insurmountable obstacles the company were compelled to decline the generous offer. But would'tit have been jolly if the plan could have been carried out? Just imagine the handsome hose carriage drawn by a team of the prettiest steeds that ever danced to music along the boulevards of that city. Then some one of the good looking coachmen of this place might have given his services for the occasion and would have made a stunning figure seated on top of the carriage decked in blue livery with brass buttons, and handling the ribbons. But perhaps it is just as well that this was not done, for the other companies in the city would have become dreadfully envious, which would have been wicked. As it is, there will be only a fair and generous rivalry with Logan Hose in the lead.

—It is reported that the coal miners of the Clearfield region have made a demand for an increase of wages of 10 per cent. to take effect October 1st. The demand was submitted to the coal operators, most of whom have offices in Philadelphia. The operators say that the present state of the coal trade will not warrant any advance, and they will resent the demand vigorously. About 50,000 minors will be involved should a strike occur. A convention of miners in the Federation was held on Saturday at Clearfield, at which a new uniform scale of wages was discussed. Answers to the demand for increase will be submitted to the miners by the various operators in a few days. It is understood they will invariably be in the negative.

—Rev. C. Wortman, pastor of the United Brethren church of this place, departed Wednesday for the Conference of his denomination, which convened that morning at Conemaugh, near Johnstown. Rev. Wortman has been pastor here only a year and it is quite probable that he will be continued a year longer.

—Rev. Mr. Davis, of New York city, has been invited to accept the rectorship of St. John's Protestant Episcopal church, this place, and it is understood that he will accept. Rev. Mr Kline will officiate in the church next Sunday, and Rev. Mr. Davis will return to Bellefonte in time to officiate on Sunday, October 3.

Repairs(?) at the White House.

The decorators at the President's mansion--the White House in Washington--are in a sad quandary as to what to do in regard to the terrible mess they have made of the Blue Room. The delicate and lovely painting of this exquisite room was done in Arthur's time by Tiffany and was the perfection of art. When the local painters got into the house this Summer, under the supervision of the Superintendent of Public Buildings, they thought they had discovered that the lower part of the walls of the Blue Room had faded. Now, the design of Tiffany had been a graduation of blue and the delicate light tint the new artists construed as fading. So orders were given for a grand dado of sky blue. The anguish of the artists when they discovered their awful blunder can scarcely be described, but worst of all was the hideous effect the ultra-marine had on the delicate robin's-egg blue.

The damage had been done, however, and the best had to be made of it. So the painters manfully went to work and when the room was given its first coat it was a veritable nightmare. What exactly to do they knew not, but to-day "the artists" were busy "trying" lighter shades on the hideous ultra marine to soften it down. There were three painters on a ladder trying the effect of a light sea-green on one of the shutters. The "best artist" was mixing various colored blues in pots on the floor and Hector, the Antwerp poodle, was showing his utter disgust of the whole affair by turning up his nose at each place of fresh paint. Hector of late has become quite a master of the White House. He has had a new alligator-skin collar sent him from his mistress in the Adirondacks and on the collar is a silver plate bearing these words:

"HECTOR CLEVELAND."

Hector has been sheared and washed and is now ready for his mistress' return.

ALL of the candidates on the Democratic State ticket have formally accepted, by letters, in which they endeavor in the most persuasive words in the dictionary to attract votes, trying first the laboring men and then the temperance element. If we know anything in regard to politics, however, the expressions of the party platform are supposed to indicate what will be the policy of a party, and the assertions of any single individual do not carry much weight.

The Chicago Times says the only cure for a rattlesnake bite is turpentine. If a bottle of it is held to the bite bottom up it is declared that the poison may be seen entering it in the shape of a bluish current or wreath. This, remarks the N. O. Picayune, leaves the whisky for inside purposes as usual.

"You don't expect a man of my trade to join this strike," said a carpet beater. "Why not?" asked the walking delegate. "Because, we are only carpet Knights, and we can raise more dust by working than loafing."

A Sportsman's Manual.

As the autumnal gunning season draws nigh, a demand arises for information concerning the best ranges of game, and the water-ways most prolific of fowl. For the purpose of supplying such a demand, the Passenger Department of the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad Company has published a work entitled, "A Paradise for Gunners and Anglers." The little volume is an exhaustive treatise on th the game birds, water fowl, and fishes of the Maryland, Delaware and Virginia Peninsulas, their haunts, habits, and characteristics. An excellent map of the territory, showing the location of streams, and the means of access, and the handsome illustrations of the rarer specimens of birds and fish serve both to embellish and contribute to the interest of the book. Information as to the game laws, the time when certain game most abound, the procurement of guides, boats, etc., and in fact everything which would make the way of the sportsman clear, is furnished in ample detail.

The book is distributed gratuitously and may be procured by addressing James R. Wood, General Passenger Agt., Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad, Philadelphia, Pa.

Why He Wept.

A San Antonia darkey was on trial for stealing money from a house on Soledad street. Julian Van Slyck, the attorney for the prisoner, in his address to the jury, said:

"Gentlemen, my client is a poor man. He was driven by hunger and want to take the small sum of money. All that he wanted was sufficient money to buy bread, for it is in evidence that he did not take the pocket-book containing $300 that was in the same bureau-drawer. If he was a professional thief, he would have certainly taken the pocket-book."

The eloquent attorney for the accused was interrupted by the convulsive sobs of his client.

"Why do you weep?" asked Judge Noonan, who was on the bench.

"Bekase I didn't see dat ar pocket-book in de bureau drawer," was the reply.

Everybody laughed except Van Slyck, the attorney for the defense.

THE WONDER
Is becoming universal as to how such an immense sale could be created in Lowell for HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA. But, my friend, if you could stand behind our counter a week and hear what those say who are using it, the reason would appear as clear as the noon-day sun. The real curative power of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA demonstrates itself in every case where our directions are faithfully regarded. We would that we might get before the people a fractional part of the confidence that is expressed to us every day in this medicine by those who have carefully noted (without prejudice) its effects upon the blood and through that upon the whole system, stimulating all the functions of the body to perform the duties nature requires of them. Try a bottle and satisfy yourself.

Cold Hands and Feet.
LOWELL, Feb. 3, 1879.
MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—About one year ago my daughter commenced taking your Sarsaparilla. At that time she had very little appetite; could take no long walks, and her face was badly broken out with a humor. She was low-spirited; troubled with cold hands and feet; her blood seemed to be poor, and she was in a condition which caused us great anxiety. After taking one bottle of your Sarsaparilla she began to improve; and she now has a good appetite and can take much longer walks. Her humor is nothing compared with what it was one year ago. She is in better spirits, is not troubled with cold hands and feet as previously. And I attribute this improvement in her condition largely to your Sarsaparilla. She has taken six bottles, and intends to continue its use. I was inclined to oppose the trial of it at first. I now have great faith in it as a blood purifier. Very truly yours,

BOOK REVIEW.

PERLEY'S REMINISCENCES OF SIXTY YEARS IN THE NATIONAL METROPOLIS.—We have received the first volume of Ben Perley Poore's reminiscences, and as we expected, find it of deep and absorbing interest. We have known Mr. Poore as a Washington correspondent of great renown ever since we were at school. All through the war no correspondents sayings were perused with so much interest as Ben Perley Poore's. His name was then as it is now, a household word in every intelligent home in the country. His fitness for the task of writing a book on Washington life no one can doubt. His association with the great men of the nation for so many years, has given him a knowledge of their character and habits which no other man living to-day has. His book, therefore, is of deep interest, as a man with so extended knowledge as a writer can make it. It is beautifully illustrated, and gives us facts and incidents to be found in no other book. It is, indeed, a rare book by a rare author. To show his fitness for this work, let us repeat that for fifty years back Mr. Poore has spent a large portion of his time in Washington as a busy and popular journalist and in various official connections. By his genial manners, large heart, ready wit, and comprehensive knowledge he has won and retained the esteem and friendship of public personages to a degree quite unparalleled. Presidents, Cabinet officers, Senators, Congressmen, members of the Diplomatic Corps, brilliant ladies, and distinguished visitors at Washington since the Presidency of John Quincy Adams have been among those whom he has personally known, interviewed upon vital questions, met at public and private entertainments, banquets, receptions, parties, etc., etc., thus giving him full personal knowledge of these celebrities, which his wonderful memory has retained and which, with his remarkable skill in pleasant chatty narrative, he has rehearsed in Perley's Reminiscences. For some years before the war Major Poore was clerk of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, and after honorable service in the Union Army he was appointed an officer of the United States Senate, which position he still occupies and which has given him the fullest opportunity of knowing the men who have molded national affairs and the influences which have molded the men themselves. Much that has transpired "behind the scenes" Major Poore is thus enabled to set "before the curtain" in full view of all, thus presenting incidents of the rarest kind and such as charm wherever they are read. And these facts he has set "before the curtain" in a very attractive way. Every intelligent man in Centre Co. should have this work. And many of our private libraries in town will not be as complete in the future as they have been in the past if this book is dot found there.

The Great Railroad Accident.

BUFFALO, N. Y., September 15.—A reporter this morning visited the scene of the terrible collision on the Nickel Plate road yesterday at Silver Creek and found the track cleared and trains passing as though nothing had ever occurred to mar the serenity of that rural spot. Only the engines, which are a total wreck, and which lay on one side of the track, and the debris of the baggage car and smoker, gathered on a pile on the other, told of the awful scene enacted there. None of the cars had left the track in the collision, and so the work of clearing away the wreck was speedily accomplished.

The injured ones at Silver Creek are doing as well as possible. Most of the injured were taken to Erie last night. Cobern, of Bradford, and Zimmerly, of Kearsage, Pa., suffered greatly during the night, but the physicians are hopeful of their recovery. Henry Huyck, whose legs were amputated, died last night while being removed to Erie. It is thought that fully two-thirds of the injured will die. Tracy, Marble, Schendler and Lesly, all of Erie, cannot, in the opinion of the surgeons, recover.

The blame for the accident can only be placed after a full investigation by the coroner's jury, which meets at Dunkirk on Friday morning. The report most credited is that the trains had orders to pass at Silver Creek, and that they were disobeyed by Conductor Harrington and Engineer Brewer, of the Excursion train. Another report has it that the train dispatcher made the error. The freight certainly had orders for Silver Creek, while the orders of the excursion train cannot be ascertained, as Engineer Brewer is still missing and Conductor Harrington positively refuses to talk.

A City in Mourning.

ERIE, Pa, September 16.—The city is in mourning for the deaths by Tuesday's railroad disaster at Silver Creek, N. Y. To-day and to-morrow masses will be held in all the Catholic churches for the repose of their souls. To the list of dead reported last night is added the name of Henry Houch, of Franklin township, who died at the Erie Union depot on the arrival of the hospital train. E. W. Marble and Louis Lindz, both of Erie, wounded, are now at St. Vincent's hospital and would doubtless die. William Simmerly and Samuel Tracy, of Kearsage, in this county, were two of the latest arrivals of the wounded. They were brought here last night. There have been so far eighteen deaths and nineteen wounded. Charles Kummestz of Pittsburg, who was reported among the killed has turned up alive, but badly wounded. He sat beside John Sutter, of Pittsburg, when he was crushed out of human semblance and only escaped a similar fate by the telescoping car's deviation from a straight course. David Sharp, a cripple, did not have his son William with him when grim death swept down upon him. It is believed that there were several excursionists ground to shreds by the car and thus all marks of identification. The two bodies not recognized are now thought to be those of two Polanders named Scholeskwi and Schowesky whose families live here. The feeling against Brewer and Conductor Donaldson is such that it will not be safe for them to railroad again in this section. Brewer has fled the country and the conductor is still at his home.

BUFFALO, N. Y., September 16.—The list of killed in the Nickel Plate collision, which was further swelled to nineteen by the finding of three more bodies, mangled beyond recognition, is now supposed to be complete. A letter from Engineer Bremer, published in the Express, of Erie, relieves those in charge of the freight train and the train dispatcher and places the blame solely upon Conductor Harrington and Engineer Brewer

Preparing for the Richmond Convention.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 15.—There is said to be a quiet move among the western delegates to the general convention of the Knights of Labor to become more firmly united upon a plan of action before proceeding to Richmond, Va., where the convention is to be held. The plan that has been suggested is to have all the western delegates, including those from this city, stop over in Pittsburg, when it is proposed to appoint a caucus. The move thus far has been successful that nearly all of the western delegates have decided to proceed to Richmond via. Pittsburg, and already it has been decided to run a special train from this city to the convention. It is expected that these delegates will arrive here 3 or 4 days before the date for the convention, which will afford them ample time to determine on a united plan of action as representatives of the west.

A representative member of the order in speaking of the matter to day said that as yet this was only in its infancy, but that he thought the western delegates would generally consider it favorably. If such caucus is held in Pittsburg he said some of the most prominent men in the country will be present. It is quite probable that they will unite on Powderly for re-election as grand master workman. The most important questions that will probably be discussed will be as to which member of the general executive board will be supported for re-election. They will most likely decide upon a western man whom they will support to succeed Turner as secretary and treasurer of the board.

A Significant Russian Appointment.

VIENNA, September 15.—The Political Correspondence says that General Baron Kaulbars, military attache of the Russian embassy at Vienna, who was summoned from Galicia while attending the austrian manoeuvres to Brest-Litovsk, Poland, by the czar last week, has been appointed Russian diplomatic agent at Sofia. If so, the appointment must be significant, as General Kaulbars is admitted to be the best informed foreigner living concerning the military affairs of Austria.

Bold Masked Burglars.

PITTSBURGH, September 15.—Two masked burglars entered the house of John Park, in Kerntown, this morning and after terribly abusing the inmates succeeded in carrying off $1,500 in cash secreted in the house. The robbers entered Mrs. Park's room and with pistol and knife demanded her money. She refused and was knocked down, but upon regaining consciousness, told where the money was concealed, under the threat of death Her husband came to the rescue, was also knocked down and left stunned and bleeding. Mrs. Park finally succeeded in reaching a neighbor's, but the villians had made good their escape. Officers are in pursuit and the neighorhood is greatly aroused at the bold outrage. There is no clue at present.

Greenbackers Meet.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 16.—It was 10.30 o'clock when Chairman Rynder called the greenback convention to order in the court house in this city and requested all who were delegates to get inside and take seats. A quiet fell on the convention as Chairman Rynder said it gave him pleasure to call to order for the fourth time, the national greenback labor convention of Pennsylvania, and he was gratified to see a larger delegation than in seven years past. Mr. Rynder said he would leave the discussion of party issues to other speakers, but he could not refrain from mentioning that the party had revolutionized the entire financial system of the country, and this alone ought to throw a perpetual halo of glory over the organization. It is the parent of independent legislation; it has destroyed corporate banking, and within the next two years the national banks will go out of existence.

Robert R. Tomlinson, of Bucks, the Quaker greenback farmer, was named for temporary president, but Mr Ould, of Erie, insisted that it was the proper thing to do to elect a permanent president and save time. He named Hon. Chas. N. Brumm, of Schuylkill, as permanent president and Mr. Brumm was elected by acclamation.

When Mr. Brumm took the chair he said: "Thank God, we still live, and our principles are destined to live until they become the true and living issue of the day." Mr. Brumm said the masses were arising to assert their rights against capital and tyranny, and they can do it through the greenback party. We want no red flag here; we march under the old flag to the tune of "Liberty, Land and Labor," and the will of God will bring victory. The man who attempts to inaugurate any system by force is a coward and a traitor to his country. [Applause.] The times are auspicious: free schools and free ballots are doing their work, and the days of monopoly are numbered. This party will be the ruling party of the nation.

The committee on credentials then reported, showing 137 delegates in attendance, representing 36 counties.

Mr. Armstrong then read the platform, a lengthy declaration of the principles of the party. It demands that the government issue all money and that no more bonds be issued by the government; that all unearned lands be forfeited; that the government shall secure by purchase after the year 1900 all lands held by aliens; that any deed made by a citizen of the United States to an alien after January, 1887, shall be null and void, and that land held by individuals or corporations in excess of 160 acres, whether improved or unimproved, shall be taxed as cultivated land; denounces the free trade agitation; denounces convict, imported, pauper, and heathen labor; demands the repeal of tax qualification for suffrage; favors a graduated income tax; demands the repeal of the state conspiracy law, the recognition of trades union orders and such other organizations; that the government shall obtain possession by purchase of all the telegraph and railroad lines; favors a practical eight-hour law; the prohibition of the employment of children under 15 years; demands the abolition of the contract system on national, state, and municipal work; the adoption of laws providing for the health and safety of those engaged in mining, manufacturing and building industries and for their indemnification for injuries received through lack of unsafe guards; the payment of employes weekly in lawful money and giving the laborers and mechanics a first lien upon the produce of labors; favors a law granting a liberal service pension to all surviving union soldiers and sailors who served in the war of 1861-65; demands of congress the appropriation of money for the improvement of all navigable streams, and that all water-ways controlled by private corporations be purchased and thrown open to free navigation, and declares that agriculture is one of the most important industries of the country and should receive the fostering care of the government.

Considerable discussion ensued over proposition to drop "greenback" from the name of the party, but it was emphatically rejected. The following ticket was then nominated: Governor, Robt. J. Houston, Lancaster; lieutenant governor, John Parker, Schuylkill county; auditor general, Daniel S. Early, Harrisburg; secretary of internal affairs, Seth H. Hoagl, Mercer county; congressman-at-large, Dr. C. Thompson, Venango county.

T. P. Rynder was re-elected chairman of the executive committee At this juncture a Philadelphia delegate, named Wertzel, who is editor of a German socialistic paper in that city, obtained the floor and made a speech in favor of the pet theory of that class. He was not encouraged. The candidate for governor was introduced and made a speech, after which the convention adjourned.

Will be a Bitter Contest.

WILKESBARRE, September 16—The conferees of the Eleventh congressional district met here this evening for the purpose of nominating a candidate for congress. The aspirants for the nomination are ex-United States Senator Buckalew, of Columbia county; Hon. John B. Storm, of Monroe county, the present member; Robert Klotz, of Carbon county; Hon. George H. Rowland, of Pike county; ex-State Senator Michael Cassidy, of Carbon county, and Hon. Thomas Dugan, of Lackawanna county. After a fruitless wrangling over organization, they adjourned to meet to-morrow morning. From the present indication it is thought the contest will be a bitter one.

Conflagration in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, September 17.—A destructive fire broke out shortly before 2 o'clock this morning, in the five story brick building at No. 131 Market street, occupied by the wholesale grocery firm of Thompson, Frye & Co. Coates & Bros.' wool warerooms, in the rear of Thompson, Frye & Co.'s store, were greatly damaged by fire and water. About 2 o'clock, while a number of firemen were playing water on the flames at that point, the walls and roof of the grocery warehouse fell with a crash, nearly burying the firemen in the ruins. At 2 25 o'clock the fire was practically under control. The loss on Thompson, Frye & Co.'s building and stock will be total. The fire is supposed to have been caused by an explosion of coal oil. Schopach's saloon, on Church street, was damaged by the fall of the rear wall of the burning building. It is estimated now that the total loss will amount to $6,000.

The Chinese Outrages.

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 17.—Minister Dently at Pekin has reported to the secretary of state two cases of recent outrages perpetrated by the Chinese upon Americans. Rev. A. A. Fulton and wife and Miss Mary Fulton, M. D., all of the American Presbyterian mission in China, established a mission hospital and station at Rwai Ping, about four hundred miles southwest from Canton, where they had expended a considerable sum in fitting up buildings. Placards appeared on the walls declaring that the foreign devils must go in three days and their buildings be destroyed. The literati, as usual, were at the bottom of the disturbance. A crowd gathered near the hospital and Mr. Fulton set out to secure the protection of the military. He was stoned on his way and not permitted to return, and no soldiers were sent to protect the mission.

On May 6 the mob piled straw and faggots against the building occupied by Mrs. and Miss Fulton and a little daughter of the former, upon which the inmates fled and the house was looted and burned. The ladies sought refuge on boats, but the mob threatened to destroy any boat that should receive them, and after some delay they reached a point where Fulton had been compelled to remain. Two days later they were put on boats and conveyed to Canton. The value of the property destroyed is about $5,500 and Consul Seymour is pressing demands for payment of this amount in damages.

The second case is of still more recent date. On Sunday, June 6, in the absence of all the gentlemen connected with the Methodist Episcopal Mission hospital at Chung King, and while only one lady was present a mob collected, broke down the gates, threw stones at the lady, one of which cut her index finger its entire length, while she was otherwise injured about the head and arms. Complaint was made to the officials, but the matter was treated lightly. This is a serious case, writes Dently, and may be a test one. It grew, as all our evils in China do, out of trouble in the United States.

Still later, on July 19, a mob attacked the mission property at Chung King and destroyed it. Dently filed a protest.

Eloping under Difficulties.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., September 17.—Rockhill, this county, was the scene of an excitement last night that is without a parallel in the history of the lower end of the county. This was due to the elopement of Thomas Anderson, a Polander, with Mrs. John Wheelbarrow, also a Polander. For some time past Anderson, who is but 21 years of age, has been paying attention to Mrs. Wheelbarrow, and although his attentions were observed and well known to the lady's husband, the latter found nothing apparently wrong between the two. For several months this intimacy has been kept up unknown to her husband.

Last evening, shortly after 5 o'clock, Mrs. Wheelbarrow and Anderson appeared at the railroad station at Orbisonia, decked out in their best apparel and awaited the arrival of the train that would take them to Mt. Union. Their absence, however, was noted by the woman's husband, on his return from work, and on inquiry he learned that the couple had bought tickets to this place. Mrs. Wheelbarrow was accompanied by her two children, Mary and Alice, 5 and 6 years respectively. Upon the husband learning of his wife's conduct, he telegraphed to Broad Top City to have the eloping couple arrested, and before their arrival there an officer was in waiting, who apprehended the parties. They were both brought here this morning. It seems that Mrs. Wheelbarrow had taken $175 with her belonging to her husband, but this was recovered from the person of Anderson. The latter was immediately placed in jail, but his partner in crime, Mrs. Wheelbarrow, is still wandering about the streets, her husband refusing to take up with her again. The children are in his possession.

— One hundred and five survivors and friends of the One Hundred and Fifty-fifth Pennsylvania Regiment, dedicated an imposing monument of Little Round Top, at Gettysburg Friday.

—Somebody told the Williamsport Sun and Banner that four inches of snow fell at Block House Thursday night. Oh, pshaw! young man. Don't believe such things.

It is estimated that there are one hundred thousand sufferers from hay fever in the United States; a number about four times greater than the regular standing army. This number could be reduced to a mere regiment if all would resort to Ely's Cream Balm.

A Subscriber at Guyer, this County, Writes about a Sermon, Education and Mineral Resources.

Rev. Geo. D. Penepacker, of Tyrone, held communion services at Ross' church, on Sunday the 12th. He chose as his text for the morning sermon Acts 13:36, "For David, after he had served his own generation by the will of God, fell on sleep, and was laid unto his fathers, and saw corruption." From this text he preached a powerful sermon urging those just entering upon life to first seek the kingdom of heaven and its righteousness, and all things shall be added unto them. He preached in the evening from Psalms 68:13, "Though ye have lain among the pots, yet shall ye be as the wings of a dove covered with silver, and feathers with yellow gold." Though commentators have failed to elucidate the passage, and say it is hard to understand, yet Rev. Penepacker unfolded it in a full, clear and manifest manner, which was recognized by all who heard him as evidently the correct interpretation of the passage. He beautifully illustrated the many valuable thoughts which the discourse contained.

Nothing is more universal in this busy, bustling world, when great demands are made, than mistakes as to the comparative importance of the different vocations of life. Is there, indeed, not too great demand made upon our common schools? Demands which cannot be met, because of neglect to remedy the many impediments which bear either directly or indirectly upon the course of our common schools? Many objectors take an attitude of defense when pressed with earnest application on the subject of education. They think its importance overrated. They say that the young mind is chiefly determined by circumstances; that the influence of teachers and parents is very narrow, and sometimes they dwarf instead of improve. Perhaps this theory is not wholly unfounded, but certainly on teachers and parents much depends whether the circumstances that surround the child shall be good or bad, be in harmony to moral development. To lay a broad and deep foundation for the child to build upon, the teacher must possess more knowledge than the common branches afford. But our teachers cannot afford this higher course. They cannot spend from $250 to $300 per year in college, and teach school five and six months in a year for from $26 to $30 per month. Hence the reason we have so many inexperienced teachers, merely teaching to get a start in life, then abandon teaching to follow some other more paying pursuit. This is one of the reasons why the great demands are not met. This seems indeed discouraging. But what else can we expect when but from $130 to $150 are spent in one district, whereas we should have higher wages, which would secure more competent teachers and at least 7 months in the year.

IMPORTANT NEW ENTERPRISE.

The growing interest in the development of the iron ore resources of our county must eventually make it rank as one of the foremost in the production of this valuable mineral. A great area of the county, especially in the southwestern part, has been critically examined and proves beyond any reasonable doubt both as to the greatness of the quantity and fineness of the quality. About 80 acres of ore lands have been tested, recently, near this village, by Wigton & Sons, and proves excellent. It analyzes from 45 to 50 per cent., will wash 1 in 4, though much of it will wash 1 in 3 or 2½, which is considered excellent. The company contemplate erecting a large washer at the earliest convenient season. But why has this ore land been so long untouched? and why do other ore lands in the county remain in an undeveloped state? Why so many furnaces idle? Are capitalists and enterprises waiting for a change? Are the markets overstocked and is the demand lessened? Or is it a lack of energy in this direction? Whatever may be the cause, we hope with the election of Gen. Beaver, and not only hope but are sure that this condition of inactivity will cease.

A Wedding in the Roman Catholic Church.

There was a beautiful wedding Thursday morning at 8 o'clock in the Roman Catholic church of this place, Rev. P. McArdle being the officiating priest. The contracting parties are Miss Alice Cooney, the charming daughter of Mr. Lawrence Cooney, and Mr. Thomas Brennan, of Braddock, Pa. Miss Maggie Cooney, a sister of the bride, was her bridesmaid, and Mr. James Brennan, brother of the groom, officiated as groomsman.

The ceremony was long and elaborate and the wedding party conducted themselves with perfect grace, presenting a beautiful picture. The bride was attired in white with a long lace veil and exquisite orange blossoms. The groom wore a perfect-fitting suit of black. The bridesmaid was attired in pink silk and was very lovely. We understand that they did not depart for their future home in Braddock until Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Brennan are model young people and well suited to contribute to each other's happiness. May the richest jewels of prosperity and bliss be their portion.

—Lively times in the school board meeting Friday. The members of the board think seriously of becoming candidates for the legislature.

A TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

Joseph Garber Crushed to Death by a Slide of Ore at Gatesburg Bank.

On Thursday night at about 8 o'clock Joseph Garber, son of Frank Garber, who lives at Nye Bank, was crushed to death by a fall of ore and clay at Gatesburg Bank. The quantity of ore that fell was between five and seven tons. Work is carried on there both day and night and Mr. Garber had been at work with the night force about fifteen or twenty minutes, having just returned from a picnic which he had been attending during the day. He stooped forward to pick up his shovel, when the mass fell, fastening him to the earth and crushing his head into an unrecognizable mass.

The work of death was instantaneous. Other men working near saw the terrible accident and the lifeless body was soon removed by willing hands and carried into the engine room. Dr. George Harris was telephoned for and arrived about ten o'clock, putting the shapeless mass which had once been his head into the best condition possible ere the body was carried to the home of mourning to await the funeral.

The deceased was an unmarried man, about 28 or 30 years of age. He had been at work at ore mining all his life since he had been able to work at all, and his father, Frank Garber, has also been engaged at the same place until about two weeks ago. The slide of ore was due to no carelessness or fault on the part of anyone, but was directly accidental and entirely unlooked for. The rain of the previous day had probably softened the mass and made it more liable to fall.

His death caused quite a sad feeling among all his fellow-workmen at the mines, and no more work was done that night. At his home also the sorrow at the event is intense. Mr. John J. Smith, an experienced miner, who was in town Friday morning, kindly furnished us many of the particulars related above.

The funeral services over the remains of deceased took place last Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Catholic church of this place.

—Our friend, Overseer James Schofield, came home from Allegheny Thursday morning, having safely transported Mr. Hemphill to the big penitentiary in that place. On the way, they rode along like two tourists—not at all like a guard and his prisoner. Mr. Schofield knew that his prisoner would not give him any trouble and therefore did not put the handcuffs on. Hemphill seemed to be in good spirits. He said he did not think it right that he should be thus punished, but would make the best of it. He talked of fishing, hunting and many other cheerful subjects, and did not seem to be at all depressed in spirits. He warmly thanked Schofield for his kindness on the way. Mr. Schofield usually keeps both eyes open when he is traveling and he can talk very entertainingly and instructively of what he saw at the great western penitentiary.

—The editor of the Centre County Times, the new Democratic paper published in Centre Hall, has not yet favored us with a copy of it, but we have seen it and must concede that it presents quite a creditable appearance. It is in the stereotyped (we don't mean this for a pun on its contents) form of Centre county papers, being eight pages of the uniform size, and on the first page of the initial number is a picture of Leonard Rhone, who is to be defeated as a candidate for the legislature next fall. T. Benton Ulrich is the proprietor and editor. We have not read it, but we notice that the inside pages are patent and the outside pages pretty well filled with stereotype plate matter, which is interesting enough—for those who like that sort of reading.

—The first annual reunion of survivors of the Third Pennsylvania heavy artillery, and the 188th Regt., Pa. Vols., will be held at Sunbury, Pa., Sept. 29th and 30th, 1886. All comrades are cordially invited to attend and urgently requested to pass the word along the lines and give the matter all possible publicity. Special rates will be given over the railroads passing through Sunbury, and extensive arrangements have been made for a grand, good time. For further particulars address Major F. A. Reen, president Reunion Association, Watsontown, Pa.; Harry T. Graves, secretary, Millerton, Tioga, Co., Pa.; Lieut. Lemuel Shipman, of executive committee, Sunbury, Pa., or S. F. Forgeus, Bellwood, Blair Co.

—A young gentleman of this place went out riding with his young lady the other day. Arriving at a farm house, they decided to take a drink of cider. The young lady had quaffed as much of the pleasant beverage as she desired when the young gentleman raised the glass to his lips. Just at that moment a vicious wasp stung him on the upper lip and the injured lip has been feeling uncomfortable ever since. If you notice any young gentleman who has a slightly swollen lip don't say anything about it.

—Quite a large number of people, including many candidates for office, gathered on top of Nittany mountain Thursday during the afternoon and had a pleasant, social time. We regret that the heavy rain of the morning interfered so materially with the attendance, as otherwise it would have been an immense affair, as the Patrons' picnics always are.

—Many are the virtues of kerosene. A correspondent writes that nothing can equal it for cleaning sinks. "First and foremost comes the sink, especially if lined with zinc as it should be. I used to waste more time and elbow grease on mine than I could well spare, and then I was not satisfied. Now I wipe it dry with the dishcloth and then take a rag well saturated with kerosene and wet the sink well with the oil; let it stand a few minutes and then wipe off with a clean, dry rag, and it will be as clean and nice as one would wish. The scent of the oil will be gone in an hour. Kerosene oil is good to put on wherever wood is wet and in drains. It kills all the moldy smell. For such places once a month seems to be enough with me, but even if one had to use it oftener it would not matter, for the work is so quickly done; merely run it over the attainable places and pour on or through where the hand cannot go without wiping off."

—About once in three months the newspapers start a report to the effect that Mr. Joe W. Furey, of the Watchman, is about to transfer his usefulness and brightness to some other newspaper. At present the newspaper which is to be favored with his services is the Lock Haven Democrat. We are compelled to take out our eau de cologne handkerchief and apply it to our off eye at the very idea of losing Joe from the editorial fraternity of this place. In the words of the obituary fiend, we say that his departure "would create a vacancy which could not well be filled."

Now Joe, please stay,
Don't go away.
How's that? Ta! ta!

—The truth as to whether squirrels are numerous or scarce this season certainly cannot be arrived at from reports given by hunters. We believe the truth is that they are about as numerous as usual. One hunter will tell you they are very scarce while the next one will inform you that the little animals are numerous. It all depends upon the success of the hunter. Every man who is interested in the subject should go and try it for himself and form his own opinion.

—A large and handsome car containing twelve trained horses and used by Jas. A. Wallick and troupe in depicting the scenes of a blood-curdling border romance, was attached to Friday morning's train from Williamsport. Among the horses was one which, it is said, was used by Jesse James.

—Jackson Gorton, of Philipsburg, was one of the twenty members of the Twenty-third New York Volunteer Infantry who volunteered to cross the pontoon bridge in May, 1862, to take possession of Fredericksburg.

—The Philipsburg Beaver Club is well provided with officers. Mr. W. E. Irvin is the president. There are eleven vice presidents. G. H. Lichtenthaler, candidate for district attorney, is the secretary.

—The hurricane which prevailed in Bellefonte Friday afternoon blew over a very large tree in the yard of Mr. E. T. Tuten's residence, Linn street. The tree was torn up by the roots.

—The attendance at the Soldier's Reunion Saturday was immense. Many people went from here in vehicles to Lemont, in addition to those who went in the excursion train.

—Henry Cramer who escaped from the Clearfield jail some time ago and was two weeks ago recaptured in Massachusetts, escaped again Monday night, the 13th.

—There is a handsome young grocer at Valentine Smith's house, which fact will compell Mr. Smith to enlarge his business soon, to make room for his son and heir.

—Although Francis Speer missed the train on the occasion of the Lewisburg Grand Army Meeting, he managed to "get there" in time to go to Lemont Saturday morning.

—The eight cars provided for the Veterans' excursion were not near sufficient to accomodate all. There were entirely too many people hanging on the ragged edge.

—The railroad station was made very lively Saturday by the presence of scores of veterans in blue uniforms and carrying flags.

—The Bellefonte hotels are receiving a large share of patronage from transient guests, showing the business attractions of Bellefonte.

—Franklin B. Gowen has resigned the presidency of the Reading railroad and recommends Mr. Austin Corbin as his successor.

—About $75 worth of clothing was taken from a line in the yard of Mrs. Brockerhoff's residence a few nights ago.

—Even the 1:15 p. m. train to Lemont was comfortabiy full Saturday and there were several extra cars attached.

—The opening of Harry Schroyer's new carpet store will be on Saturday, September 25.

Forepaugh's Colossal Show.

There needed only the present brilliant tour of the immense Forepaugh Show through New England, to prove beyond doubt that he has the most comprehensive, elaborate and startling exhibition in the world. He will be here on Tuesday, October 12, when our own people will have an opportunity to judge for themselves as to its merits. The Boston papers have made such warm endorsements of the great show, as we do not remember to have seen heretofore of any other exhibition performing there. The Daily Post, June 16, makes the following comment:

The magnificent arenic performances which are given every afternoon and evening in the mammoth pavilion on the Union Grounds are attracting large crowds. Such a rare combination of talent seldom visits the city, and no one should fail to witness the entertainment. The features are far too numerous to describe in detail, for all are excellent, and each performer shows that skill and ability which characterizes all of Mr. Forepaugh's artists. Daisy Belmont, a dainty little lady of pleasing face and supple figure, gives some remarkably fine performances on the revolving globe. The riding of Miss Annie Carroll is graceful and daring, and the trapeze acts of the Fisher Brothers and the Belmonts excite the greatest wonder. The Elliotts, the champion bicycle riders of the world, are very entertaining, and their performances on the wheel are exceedingly graceful. The marvelous feat of riding astride one wheel is successfully accomplished by one of the performers. Captain Bogardus and his four sons, all crack shots, give an exhibition of rifle shooting in the connection with the realistic and thrilling stage coach robbery and attack by Indians. These are but a few of the many features which have made Forepaugh's circus famous, and he will miss much who fails to attend the performances at this place.

Miraculous Escape.

W. W. Reed, druggist, of Winchester, Ind., writes: "One of my customers, Mrs. Lousia Pike, Bartonia, Randolf Co., Ind., was a long sufferer with consumption and was given up to die by her physicians. She heard of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and began buying it of me. In six month's time she walked to this city, a distance of six miles, and is now so much improved she has quit using it. She feels she owes her life to it."

Free Trial Bottles at J. ZELLER & SON'S Drug Store.

Dr. Gimlet returns emty-handed from a day's hunting, and in response to his wife's inquiries, candidly confesses that he killed nothing. "Why," retorts Mrs. G., slowly, "you could have done better than that had you staid at home and attended to your regular business!"

I Have been troubled with catarrh of the head and throat for the last five years. About three years ago I commenced the use of Ely's Cream Balm, and from the first application I was relieved. The sense of smell which had been lost, was restored after using one bottle. I have found the Balm the only satisfactory remedy for catarrh I have used, and it has accomplished a cure in my case.—H. AN EXTRAORDINARY OFFER.

To All Wanting Employment.

We want Live, Energetic and Capable Agents in every county in the United States and Canada, to sell a patent article of great merit, ON ITS MERITS. An article having a large sale, paying over 100 per cent profit, having no competition, and on which the agent is protected in the exclusive sale by a deed given for each and every county he may secure from us. With all these advantages to our agents and the fact that it is an article that can be sold to every householder, it might not be necessary to make an "EXTRAORDINARY OFFER" to secure good agents at once, but we have concluded to make it to show, not only our confidence in the merits of our invention, but in its salability by any agent that will handle it with energy. Our agents now at work are making from $150 to $200 a month clear and this fact makes it safe for us to make our offer to all who are out of employment. Any agent that will give our business a thirty days' trial and fail to clear at least $100 in this time, ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all goods unsold to us and we will refund the money paid for them. Any agent or general agent who would like ten or more counties and work them through sub-agents for ninety days and fail to clear at least $250 ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all unsold and get their money back. No other employer of agents ever dared to make such offers, nor would we if we did not know that we have agents now making more than double the amount we guaranteed, and but two sales a day would give a profit of over $125 a month, and that one of our agents took eighteen orders in one day. Our large descriptive circulars explain our offer fully, and these we wish to send to everyone out of employment who will send us three one cent stamps for postage. Send at once and secure the agency in time for the boom, and go to work on the terms named in our extraordinary offer. We would like to have the address of all the agents, sewing machine solicitors and carpenters in the country, and ask any reader of this paper who reads this offer, to send us at once the name and address of all such they know. Address at once, or you will lose the best chance ever offered to those out of employment to make money. RENNER MANUFACTURING CO.

THE NARROW ESCAPE

Of a Massachusetts Engineer.

Sleep after fatigue and health after disease are two of the sweetest experiences known to me. For ten years is a long time to suffer, yet Mr. Peter Lawler, of Dalton, Mass., had led a miserable life for that period through the presence of stone in the bladder. He did obtain temporary relief, but nothing more. Last January he called on Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., who said, after an examination: "Mr. Lawler, you have stone in the bladder. We will first try DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY before risking an operation." A few days later the following letter

DALTON, Mass., re. 6.

DEAR DR. KENNEDY: The day after I came home I passed two gravel stones, and am doing nicely now. PETER LAWLER.

Dr. Kennedy now has the stones at his office, and they are sufficiently formidable to justify the claim that KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY is the leading specific for stone in the bladder. In his letter Mr. Lawler mentions that FAVORITE REMEDY also cured him of rheumatism. The subjoined certificate tells its own story:

OLD BERKSHIRE MILLS,
DALTON, Mass., April 27, 1882.

Mr. Peter Lawler has been a resident of this town for the past seventeen years, and in our employ for fifteen, and in all these years he has been a good and respected citizen of this town and community. He has had some chronic disease to our knowledge for most of the time, but now claims to be, and is, in apparent good health.
CHARLES O. BROWN, President.

$1 bottle; 6 for $5. All drug ists.

Dr. David Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" (Rondout, N. Y.)—It is not a mere soother, temporarily, of pain, but by its alterative action purifies the blood, restores a healthful condition to the disease organs, and even dissolves and causes the expulsion of gravel and stone from the kidneys and bladder. The testimony of hundreds who have been cured by it vouches for this.

Rogers' Grapoline!

This preparation is a mild and gentle saline cathartic, alterative and tonic. It is most carefully prepared in the form of a snow white powder, containing all the medical properties of the GRAPE and other fruits. —The market fees during the past two weeks amounted to $8.20.

—General John A. Logan will arrive in this State next week to take part in the campaign.

—The Logan Hose Company were granted permission to take the hose carriage to Altoona.

—The Clymer Family, a concert, comedy and specialty company, will be here his week or next.

—There are nine inmates of the prison part of Sheriff Walker's handsome residence on Jail Hill.

—Republicans, have you paid your state and county tax? If not, be sure to do so before October 2.

—The Democratic senatorial conferees of this district will meet in Bellefonte on Thursday, the 23d inst.

—Numerous citizens appeared before council Monday evening, making requests of all descriptions.

—The Democratic congressional conference, which was to have met in Lock Haven on the 23d, has been postponed for a week.

—P. S. Dale, of Spring Mills, showed a reporter a very fine specimen of pipe ore which he picked up on his farm in Nittany Valley.

—If the men who have the nut stand near the National Bank continue adding to their stock they soon will have quite a grocery store.

—The engine attached to the early train to Lemont got off the track at this place Tuesday morning, delaying the departure of the train 35 minutes.

—A valuable cow owned by Chas. F. Cook was struck by the express train west on Monday and so seriously injured that she will have to be shot.

—The General Secretaries' conference of the Y. M. C. A. of Pennsylvania will be held in this place beginning Tuesday, October 12 at 2 o'clock p. m., and closing Wednesday evening.

—There will be a meeting on Saturday evening, September 25, at the school house in Stormstown, for the purpose of organizing a Beaver Club. Speakers will be present to address the meeting. Let everyone be present.

—A writer in the Pittsburg Dispatch pronounces Mark Twain the most refined humorist in this country and perhaps in the world. What nonsense! Robert Burdette's writings show more refinement than those of Mark Twain.

—Mr. Walter Buck, formerly of Howard, has opened a tailor shop in Millheim. Walter is a good tailor, just the kind of a workman who has long been needed in that place, and the people of that entire community will send in their orders.

—Three men were slightly injured by a cave-in at McCalmont & Co's lime kilns on Saturday morning. They were Richard Gunsalis, Joseph Davis, and Samuel Sprankin. Davis was the most painfully injured. None of their injuries are at all serious.

—Joseph Einstien, uncle of Mrs. Simon Loeb, of this place, died on Saturday night at the residence of Mr. Loeb, where he made his home. His death was caused by paralysis. His remains were taken to Philadelphia Monday morning, where the funeral services and interment took place.

—The game of base ball between the Black Diamonds and the Muckamullens, on Saturday afternoon, resulted in a victory for the former by a score of 25 to 19. The Black Diamonds having won games from every Bellefonte nine, are now willing to try conclusions with any base ballers in the county.

—It is very strange that young men in all parts of the country are meeting with accidents just like that which befell the Bellefonter who was stung on the lips by a wasp just as he was quaffing cider. It was an actual occurrence in Bellefonte which the REPUBLICAN first recorded and we believe that similar accidents recorded in other papers are somewhat imaginary.

—An old man was put in prison on Saturday for setting on fire the barn belonging to Mr. Kohlbecker at Milesburg. The flames were extinguished before they had done any harm. Still later, he set fire to a hay stack and said it was for the purpose of offering up a burnt offering. As the people of that vicinity do not care for that kind of sacrifices he was placed in durance vile. He is a stranger.

—We consider it somewhat strange that council should refuse to put a light on Bishop street near the Academy building, the more so from the fact that since the request for it was made a young lady fell at that very place, at night, spraining her ankle and confining her to the house three weeks. She has not yet recovered from the effects of it. It afforded her much discomfort, inconvenience and financial loss.

Some of Sunday's Sermons.

Rev. Mr. Davis, of New York, officiated in the Episcopal church on Sunday, delivering sermons which seemed to evince that the reverend gentleman has been a close student of nature, in all its varied phases, and can apply the words of Scripture with a power and originality which produces an impression on the mind and heart. His morning discourse was drawn from the account given in St. Luke 8: 27-29 of the healing of the demoniac. Without reference to any notes, he compared the two men thus brought together—the God-man and the mere man under the power, as he was, of a personal devil. This comparison was strongly brought out and at once awakened interest. Then he described the process of this complete dominion of sin over the human soul, the danger that threatens each one of us in yielding to the first approaches of Satan, and urged the congregation to beware lest they, too, imitate the demoniac.

His evening discourse was also from St. Luke 8: 4-8, the parable of the sower. In this sermon he showed a thorough study of the circumstances of the event and of the process of germination and applied them to spiritual things in a way which made the much discussed subject possess a new charm. It contained new lessons. Particularly interesting were his illustrations relating to the mineral, vegetable and animal kingdoms. The mineral kingdom cannot, of its own power, lift itself to the vegetable kingdom, as, for instance, a stone cannot become a potato; nor can the vegetable kingdom, of itself, become animal with power of motion, thought and action. But when the vegetable shoots its roots into the earth it can take up the mineral and make it part of itself, and man can take the vegetable and make it part of his bone and muscle. Thus alone can man be raised to God by God reaching down and elevating him. His illustrations from the seed that fell by the wayside, upon the rock and among thorns were unusually powerful and real, and he concluded by comforting the faithful workers who have been looking too much for results by the comparison of the seed which fell on good ground, which brought forth seed in different proportions, some thirty, some sixty and some an hundred fold.

A Wild Spot to Visit.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN—Dear Sir: Having enjoyed myself hugely, I feel it my duty to inform some of our pleasure seekers, who visit the famous mountain and water resorts, that had they an idea there was a place of the kind so near Bellefonte, they would, in preference, visit the old hunter "Hiram Ross," who lives in a locality where miles can be traveled without seeing a human being, but where deer, bear, wild cats, etc., live almost undisturbed. It is reached from Bellefonte best by taking the cars to Linden Hall, crossing Penns Valley, the Bear Meadows and two adjacent mountains. It is well to start early in the morning as the experience I had by taking the noon train was not of a smiling character. Being overtaken by rain and darkness in the Bear Meadows, the slightly worn path could be kept only by feeling with the feet, which my guide, the old hunter, Hiram Ross, was an expert at. Keeping close to him, I could, with careful attention, keep the path. But this did not keep me from the swamps and rocks over which I constantly tumbled, nor the copperheads, whose smell makes one unacquainted with them think he has mashed a bed of cucumbers. Nor was it pleasant at that time to know that as soon as we crossed the last mountain we would be in the haunts of wild cats, bear, snakes, etc. But for all, I reached the hunter's home in safety and felt much satisfaction over the trip as it was ended. My first startling experience there was to see a wild cat spring in front of my face and be out of sight before I could raise my gun. Another was to find myself in close proximity to seven rattlesnakes, all of which I killed, and to be astonished when, in summing up the number killed, to have the old hunter say it had been a very poor day for rattlesnakes, which, by the way, are his pets, and have been compelled by him to crawl into small jugs, etc. To cut a long story short, a visit to Hiram Ross, who can be reached by mail at McElevey's Fort, Huntingdon Co., Pa., will give one, during the day, all the bear, deer, wild cats, snakes, etc., and during the evening all the anecdotes about the same that one could wish.

Very truly yours,
I. C. HORNETS.

Joe W. Furey Goes to Lock Haven.

Mr. Joe W. Furey, the bright and versatile associate editor of the Democratic Watchman, departed on Saturday evening to take editorial charge of the Lock Haven Daily Democrat. Mr. Furey has been connected with the Watchman for many years and perhaps has done more than any other one man to keep together the great Democratic party. He has been of incalculable use to the party in this county and on one or two occasions has asked a recognition of his services in the way of election to an office, and the history of Democratic politics in this county is the witness to the base ingratitude with which his requests were received. It is a sad commentary on the condition of Centre county Democracy that one of its ablest advocates with voice and pen must go elsewhere to secure adequate recognition. We congratulate the Lock Haven Democrat on its valuable acquisition and can assure our Clinton county friends that they have gained much socially and intellectually by the change. Mr. Furey will not move his family to Lock Haven until some time in November.

Showers of Interesting Items from Stormstown.

SEPTEMBER 20.

Mr. Isaac Way was followed to his last resting place in the Friends' graveyard on Thursday by a large concourse of friends and neighbors. He was 74 years and 27 days old, instead of 78 years as I reported before.

George Wilson, who resides near Loveville, was attacked by a vicious bull in the field a few days ago. As I understand it, the bull had him down when a man happpened along the road with a dog, and between the man and the dog they succeeded in getting Mr. Wilson out of danger.

There is considerable thieving going on in this valley. Some time ago Mr. Miles and Jacob Mattern had a lot of wool stolen, Mr. W. L. had his bee hives robbed, and last Sunday evening some miscreant stole 20 dozen of quinces off of trees belonging to John Broydst.

Mr. Horace G. Elder has supplied a long-felt want in this valley by putting up a pair of choppers attached to steam power, and now turns out first-class chop to the tune of 12 bushels per hour. Farmers, bring on your chop stuff.

Mr. John Mattern is about to erect a new barn on the site of the one that was destroyed by fire a short time ago. And now they say that a small colored boy went into the barn to hunt eggs to cook for supper when he came across an old hatching hen, who was boss of the situation. But the little fellow, nothing daunted, applied a match to the old cluck, and it didn't take long to cook both eggs and cluck.

Mr. John Sellers was at Philadelphia and took in the State fair, but can't understand why Gen. Beaver and Chauncey Black should ride out to the park in the same carriage.

We should go into the next election to win and use all honorable means to elect the entire ticket, and if Mr. Guyer Mattern is elected the people can feel safe and sure that they have a representative that will not be for barter or sale, and his career is full of pure and manly deeds.

CORPORAL.

School Books.

Perhaps one of the alarming evils of our day, and one which demands immediate remedy, is the abuse of the school book system. It is to be found in the frequent changes made in school books, but more in the high price asked for them. The changes are more prevalent in rural districts than in towns, and the people are protesting against this abuse with all the indignation they can command. If these frequent changes and the high price would result in books superior in their contents and binding the complaints would not be made. But competent critics say that the books substituted for old ones frequently are not equal to those which have fallen into disuse. Not long ago a school book was made so substantial and durable that it could be transmitted from one child to another until almost every member of the family had used it. Now, when the books have been used one term they are ready to fall to pieces and must be renewed.

Many people in the country do not send their children to school because of their inability to purchase books. The only remedy of which we can conceive is to make a wise choice in selecting the members of a board of education. Select men who are considerate of others and know a good book when they see it. It would be difficult to devise laws to regulate the practice.

Meeting of the Presbytery of Huntingdon.

A special session of the Huntingdon Presbytery met in the Presbyterian church of this place this morning at 11 o'clock. The object of the morning session was to examine Rev. J. H. Orbison as an evangelist and missionary preparatory to going to India in that capacity. The Presbytery was called to order by the moderator, Rev. Gammell, and Rev. Miller was elected secretary. After a few explanatory remarks by Rev. Dr. Hamill, Mr. Orbison took his seat and prepared to endure the scrutiny of the congregation assembled and to answer the searching questions put to him by the learned D. Ds. appointed for that purpose. The examination was confined to experimental religion, the theology of the church and the different doctrines and creeds. About two years ago Mr. Orbison stood a thorough examination before the Presbytery convened at Unionville, consequently his examination at this time was brief.

The part of the service being ended, Mr. Orbison went into the pulpit to preach the trial sermon. He took his text from the 6th chapter of Galatians 7th and 8th verses. This was one of the best sermons which Mr. Orbison has delivered and it contained many lessons of great importance to all. It was no doubt very gratifying to his friends as well as to the members of the Presbytery.

The afternoon session of the Presbytery met at 2 o'clock. Rev. Dr. Freeman, of Huntingdon, preached the ordination sermon and Rev. Dr. Hamill delivered the charge to the minister.

Peanuts.

Is it strange that an appetite should all at once develop for that delusive little article, the peanut? It hassiezed upon our people with all the tenacity which characterized the roller skating craze in its most popular days. It is indulged in to the same extent by preacher, poet and peddler. Though nothing, perhaps, can be urged as to immoral tendencies of the peanut, many opinions are expressed regarding its healthfulness. The munching of a peanut seems to be productive of as much pleasure as the smoking of a cigar. The more peanuts one eats the more he wants. While boys in other towns are shouting "Chestnut!" in Bellefonte they utter one mighty chorus to the tune of the word "Peanut!"

The peanut is always associated in the mind and mouth with gingerbread and in the mind alone with circus exhibitions, county fairs and rural lads and lassies. We wont have the county fair, but we make up that deficiency by the quantity of peanuts.

Free Lectures.

Mrs. R. A. Emmons, of New York, who has been lecturing on temperance during the past Spring and Summer, will visit this county and favor us with a few of her excellent lectures, beginning on October	1st	at Port Matilda.

"	2d	" Scotia.
"	3d	" Stormstown.
"	4th	" CentreLine M.E. church.
"	5th	" Ross' M. E. church.
"	6th	" Hannah Furnace.

We cordially invite all to come and hear her. Her lectures are of a high order and cannot fail to inspire and convince, as her opportunities for a clear, thorough knowledge of her subject have been of the very best, and she has conscientiously improved these to fit her as a worker of the first class. Do not fail to hear her.

COR. SEC. W. C. T. U.
Loveville, Pa.

—Rev. J. H. Orbison, of this place, was married on Thursday evening, September 16, at 6 o'clock, to Miss Lily Edgeworth Campbell, of Germantown, Pa. The wedding occurred in the First Presbyterian church of that city, of which the Rev. Chas. Wood, D. D., is pastor, and the ceremony was performed by that gentleman. The groom is the son of Mrs. N. Orbison of this place and is a young gentleman of the highest character. He is about to depart for India to engage in his life work as missionary, in which noble work both his father and mother spent their best days and achieved noble results. He is equipped for his work with a thorough theological and medical education and robust physical health. We believe he was born in India, while his parents were missionaries there. His bride is an accomplished lady, who has also devoted herself to the same work, and will be a true and valuable aid to him in his exalted mission. The possibilities for usefulness before these young people are incalculable. Though their work is not one in which even the hightest talents can secure the praise of the world, it is the best in the character of its results in which anyone can engage. Therefore, the most earnest wishes for the success of the happy couple will accompany them in their journey to India and in all their future lives.

No Competition Here.

The subscribers to the BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN who pay up all arrearages and one full year in advance, get not only the best local newspaper in the county, but also, the Philadelphia Press one year free. Last week these two papers contained eighty-five columns of interesting reading; over one thousand eight hundred and seventy (1870) inches—as much as a good sized book—and the entire cost of all this to our subscribers was a little less than four cents. This is the greatest amount of reading for so little money ever offered to the people of Centre county. New subscribers who pay two dollars in advance, for the year, get the benefit of this unparalleled offer. For their two dollars they get one hundred and four papers, containing one hundred thousand inches of solid reading matter, without one line of advertising. And besides, they get many columns of interesting advertisements showing them where they can buy and buy cheap and good. In this we have no competition. No other paper in the county can make this offer. No other paper in this county can give the Press free. Hundreds have taken advantage of it, and hundreds more will. It is a "soft snap" and he who fails to "catch on" is not wise. An interesting campaign is at hand and the fullest reports from all over the State can be had here. The long winter evenings are at hand, and we offer intellectual food of unparalleled sweetness and great abundance—science, religion, fiction, politics, the world of fashion, the home, the farm, love, intrigue, war.
